J. M. P. Sends a Book.
The Iron Duke.
A Great Little Man.
What Is Fame? Ask Him.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

CAPT. J. M. P. sent along a new life of Wellington, by Philip Guedella, published by Harper and Brothers, and this misguided person, awake at two in the morning, thought "glancing through a few pages of that dull biography will bring sleep quickly."

The glancing through, and the 481 pages were finished six and a half hours later, at half past eight yesterday morning. No sleeping powder more dangerous than good biography.

IF YOU ARE able to buy books freely, and like biography, get the new Wellington. It costs $4, and is not for those that have not already read at least 100 of greater men biographies.

A thousand characters in history are more important than Wellington, as individuals, although his good fortune, finding Napoleon just when the latter could be pushed over, will make him memorable as long as this era of war shall seem important.

IT IS ADVANTAGEOUS not to underestimate your adversary, and not to fear him. Wellington did not underestimate Napoleon, for he said that Bonaparte's presence on the battlefield was worth 40,000 men.

He might have said 400,000.

Wellington was able to study Napoleon at long range, in Spain, where Napoleon did not go in person, and, studying orders sent to the French marshals, Wellington was encouraged by the discovery that Napoleon could make mistakes.

WHEN HE MET Napoleon, or rather the shadow of Napoleon, at Waterloo, Wellington had no fear of the great name. Every trainer of a prizefighter can tell you what that means. This writer long ago saw John L. Sullivan, in the old New York Madison Square Garden, walk slowly up to a well-trained, powerful athlete taller, stronger than himself.

Looking into Sullivan's savage eyes, the other man wavered, and fell down. That was the end of the battle. Not a blow struck, and the frightened one might have won the battle.

THE FACT that he never knew fear, doing, alone, on horseback in his dull gray coat, the most dangerous scouting, proves Wellington's greatness, or, at least, perfect control of his nerves. His littleness was proved, in many ways, for instance, by his comical statement that Napoleon was not a gentleman.

"Bonaparte's mind was, in its details, low and ungentlemanlike."

That was a small puddle criticizing the Pacific. But it was a brave and interesting little puddle.

THE INTERESTING littleness was shown in his distrust of the people, his hatred of the word liberty or anything approaching liberalism, his fawning on sovereigns, that perhaps owed their thrones to him, his relations with the deeply religious little Miss Jenkins who sent him a Bible, read out loud to him from it, bossed him and planned to marry him.

HIS ALMOST childish distress, when it was proposed to remove an equestrian statue that had been erected in his honor, was pathetic. But when the mob that had stoned his windows in London threatened his life, in his old age, as he slowly rode his horse through the streets, it was the real Welington that it saw, grimly contemptuous, never hastening his pace for the rabble, to which he applied the French saying:

"Pour la canaille,

Meaning roughly, "For the rabble, bullets."

THE MAN who nourished "vaulting ambition" in his youth and sees life slipping away, without realization of his dreams, will not read without childish emotion the list of titles that Wellington carried to the grave. They are ingeniously and dramatically inserted at intervals in Guedella's description of Wellington's funeral, and show the advantage that monarchy possesses, in its power to reward services, by feeding vanity.

The Iron Duke, moving slowly to his grave, in a preposterously ugly, unsuitable and very British funeral car, bore more than 50 titles. These are a few:

Duke of Wellington, Prince of Waterloo in the Netherlands, Duke of Ciudad Rodrigo in Spain, Duke of Brunoy in France, Grandee of the First Class in Spain, Commander-in-Chief of the British Army, Field Marshal of Great Britain, Marshal of Russia, Austria, France, Prussia, Spain, Portugal, The Netherlands, a Knight of the Garter of the Holy Ghost, of the Golden Fleece, High Constable of England, Constable of the Tower, Constable of Dover Castle, Warden of the Cinque Ports, Chancellor of the University of Oxford, and thus, on and on.

NOW THE DUSTY remains of his wiry body, that he had carefully massaged with vinegar, each day, lie in a great stone sarcophagus under the dome of Saint Paul's, in London.

Near by, sharing the crypt with him, lies Lord Nelson, who did for England, at sea more than Wellington did on land. Nelson whose fleet the "grand army" never saw. Nelson who

FEAR TAXI DAMAGED LUNG

Ex-British Chancellor, Hit By Auto in New York, in Peril of Hemorrhage

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(AP.) — Winston Churchill, British statesman, knocked down by a taxicab last night, underwent lengthy examination today and doctors acknowledged that there was danger of pleural hemorrhage developing.

X-ray photographs were taken to determine the seriousness of his condition, but in the meantime, the physicians in attendance announced that at any rate the former British chancellor of the exchequer would be unable to do any active work for several weeks.

LUNG DAMAGED

First examination of the visiting British statesman indicated that the most serious injury was wrenching of the right shoulder, which it was said had long been weak.

Apparently, however, the injury to the shoulder accompanied some damage to the membrane enfolding the lung, giving rise to the physicians' fear that hemorrhage of that membrane might ensue.

During practically the entire forenoon Churchill was under ex-

WINCHELL HAILS WCAE 'VOICE'

By DARRELL V. MARTIN
Radio Editor

Broadway's famous columnist rushed the following telegram to the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph yesterday following the published story that WCAE will be owned and managed by the Sun-Telegraph beginning tomorrow:

"Mrs. Winchell's little boy Walter says 'OKay Pittsburgh and Station WCAE.' More ether to it! Walter Winchell."

Walter, affectionately referred to as "Little Boy Peep," will be among the celebrities who will come to Pittsburgh on Monday, January 4, to help dedicate the station as a Sun-Telegraph institution. Mark Hellinger, George McManus, O. O. McIntyre and "Believe It Or Not" Ripley will participate in an hour's broadcast over a coast-to-coast hookup of the National Broadcasting Company. Bugs Baer will be master of ceremonies. The greatest galaxy of writers, stage stars and other notables ever gathered in Pittsburgh will take part.

The Sun-Telegraph officially takes over WCAE with the first

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 14.—(AP.)—About 50 men, all said to be veterans of the World War, today started a hike to Washington to seek full payment of their bonus certificates and the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

Bill for Bridgeville Hero's Back Pay in Congress

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—(AP.)—Congress was asked today to provide $175 back pay for a Bridgeville, Pa., veteran.

Miles Thomas Barrett, who deserted the Marines for the Army in order to get overseas and then was returned to the Marines, wants his pay as an Army Sergeant from May 5 to August 19, 1918. After more than 10 years of futile effort, a bill to pay him was introduced by Representative Campbell, of Crafton.

It all came about this way:

Barrett enlisted at the outbreak of the war with the Marine Corps hoping to see action on the front. When no transfer for overseas duty came after months of waiting, Barrett deserted on May 3, 1918, while on leave, and joined the Army.

Soon after joining he was sent overseas and was in action on the Western Front when his desertion was discovered and he was returned to the Marines.

Subsequent service won him a Croix de Guerre from the French government and a citation for gallantry in action from Gen. Pershing. He was honorably discharged from the Marines but the Army failed to give him a similar discharge and has refused his petition for the $175.

STRIKE ADDS TO CHAOS IN PRISON

The new trouble started last night when the boiler house crew, numbering about a score, went on strike.

Sanford Bates, director of federal prisons, who arrived at the penitentiary today to investigate the break by seven convicts last week, said the striking crew was relieved and the striker were sent to their cells.

TURMOIL SPREADS

During the night the disturbance spread through Cell House B, housing about 800 prisoners. Convicts shouted and yelled and beat on the bars of their cells.

The flareup continued sporadically today, but Director Bates said things had quieted down at 11:30 a. m.

The night guard detail of 40 men was called to the prison to prepare for any eventuality.

All the prisoners were held in their cells until after breakfast time. Bates said that after order was restored many of the convicts were being released for the noon meal. Those who displayed unruliness were kept locked up.

CAUSE MYSTERY

Prison authorities said they had not learned the reason for the boiler room strike. It was assumed, however, to be an outgrowth of the unrest following the break in which Warden Thomas B. White was kidnaped and wounded, three escaped prisoners were killed, three recaptured and one made his getaway.

Bates said he would have no statement to make concerning the break until he makes a complete investigation.

The main corridor of the prison, usually free from guards, was being patroled today. Two additional guards also were placed in the tower which commands the main prison steps.

Walker Aide Faces Fine by Probers

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(AP.)—The Hofstadter legislative committee investigating New York City affairs today gave Russell T. Sherwood, whom they described as Mayor Walker's missing financial agent, a choice of appearing here Friday or leaving himself subject to a $100,000 fine.

The investigators want to question Sherwood about the Mayor's affairs. They declare had had a joint safe deposit box with Walker.

Powers to Remain In Clarksburg Jail

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Dec. 14.—(AP.)—Sheriff W. B. Grimm today set at rest rumors that Harry F. Powers, convicted slayer, would be taken immediately to the state penitentiary at Moundsville. Grimm said he would be kept in the Harrison County Jail indefinitely.

INSIDE STORY OFFERED IN PROBE OF OFFICE

Real Estate Operator's $62,000 'Undeposited' Check Brings New Angle

The inside story of the City Treasurer's office, regardless of what high city officials are hit, today was reported available to District Attorney Andrew T. Park.

Reports of diversion of city funds, shortages in various accounts and other shady deals are expected to be definitely established by the voluntary testimony of several employes of the Treasurer's office, who are reported to have offered to "tell all" to the District Attorney and City Controller J. P. Kerr.

These employes are said to feel that the indictment of two of their fellow-workers on embezzlement charges, the dismissal of their chief, Roy D. Schooley, and the shortages definitely reported in three accounts, have cast suspision on their own honesty.

$62,000 CHECK

With this development today it was revealed also that the large real estate operator whose $62,000 checks for taxes have been held undeposited for some reason, in the Treasurer's office since last January, owed a total of $250,000 city taxes.

Controller Kerr said today that all of these checks would be deposited for collection Wednesday. He added that the realtor, on demand, had returned all the tax receipts but one, explaining that the one would be made good.

At District Attorney Park's office today it was indicated more indictments will be returned in the Treasurer's probe, and some of the prosecutions may be aimed at individuals whose dealings with the office are regarded as "emergency loans" from city funds.

Park admitted today he had questioned additional employes of the office and invited information concerning the investigation from the public.

With the state of affairs in the Treasurer's office regarded in confusion, the city has moved to collect on the $150,000 surety bonds posted for former Treasurer Schooley to cover a share of "the undeterminable loss existing in his records."

REQUEST MADE

The city's request has been reported made to Maryland Casualty Company, which holds the $100,000 bond posted for Schooley as Treasurer and $50,000 bond posted for him as delinquent tax collector. It was in the delinquent tax division that John M. McKibbin, chief clerk, and Albert L. Brandner, cashier, both indicted for embezzlement, were employed.

Schooley, fired by his one-time political friend, Mayor Kline, when it was revealed he deposited $125,000 unprotected city funds in the Franklin Savings and Trust Company, was reported recovering from a siege of illness in his home today.

MELLON'S DEBT PLAN ATTACKED

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—Secretary Mellon's plan for revising war debt payments was denounced in the Senate today as an effort "to balance the British budget."

The charge was made by Senator Dill (Dem.), of Washington, in introducing a bill calling for an international silver conference, for placing silver on a moetary status through the world as a prelude to acceptance of war debt payments in silver.

The proposal came as an alternative to the Smoot plan for accepting war debt payments in silver during the economic crisis. He proposed a silver commission consisting of three men to be named by the President, three Senators and three Representatives to negotiate a silver agreement with the world powers. If other nations adopted a silver standard with America the bill would authorize the President to

Robeson to Quit Concerts for Radio

LONDON, Dec. 14.—(AP.)—Paul Robeson, American Negro singer, said he was virtually giving up concert singing in favor of the radio.

The strain of singing in large halls has taxed his voice, he said. He intends to take over a small theater in London for the presentation of plays featuring himself, or giving scope for the introduction of Negro music, in addition to his contemplated singing through the microphone, he added.

Sing Sing Follies Audience Warned

OSSINING, N. Y., Dec. 14.—(INS.)—Sing Sing follies, staged by the convicts, will have its premiere tonight. Those attending the show will have to submit to a search, Warden Lawes ruled, to prevent guns from being smuggled into the prison.

The audience will be locked in during the performance, Lawes issued a special warning to patrons against wearing jewels or carrying large amounts of cash.

LONDON, Dec. 14.—(INS.)—If the stars are inhabited by intelligent "human beings," there is no reason why tenants of the earth should not eventually be able to communicate with them by radio, Senator Guglielmo Marconi told the Evening Standard today.

McGovern Backs Cuts; Coyne Silent on Barr Threat 'To Get' Him

Commissioner Holds Economy Move Necessary

By MARK SHIELDS

County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern approves with reluctance the action of Chairman E. V. Babcock, of the County Board, in cutting county salaries 25 per cent for December.

He talked with Babcock before departing for a vacation about laying off 168 employes in the county Department of Public Works, and approved that action in principle, without designating individuals selected by Babcock for the ax.

He cannot say at this time whether the reduction in county salaries will become permanent after the first of the year. He must first discuss that subject with his new colleagues, C. M. Barr and William D. Mansfield, and canvass expectancy of revenue for 1932.

Independent Assails 'Booze and Vice' Gangs Here

Senator James J. Coyne's move on the Allegheny County political battlefield was awaited today following County Commissioner-elect C. M. Barr's frank announcement that to get Jim Coyne would be the first objective of the new board of County Commissioners when it organizes after New Years. When informed of Barr's announcement Coyne made no comment.

In a tirade against the "booze and vice" in an address before the State Adult Bible Class Federation yesterday in the Smithfield Methodist Episcopal Church, Senator Barr said:

"When we get started after the first of the year, Jim Coyne will be the first one we will go after. I believe in laying my cards on the table. I've fought against the booze gang and the vice gang for 35 years. I fought them twice in the last six months and won both times.

FOUGHT AND WON

"I fought them in the primary with only $15,000 as compared with the $500,000 of the county organization. In the second fight we had only $19,000. We spotted them 100,000 votes and

Mary H. Clowes, 21, former waitress of New Eagle, who offered to marry the man who pays her parents $10,000, had her vision of a happy—and remunerative—married life shattered today.

The $10,000-check which a Buffalo man mailed her to seal his proposal came back from Buffalo to the bank at Monongahela, where Miss Clowes had deposited it, with the cryptic stamp "No Account."

Miss Clowes said:

"They told me the check was on the wrong bank and no good so I wrote him not to bother coming to New Eagle."

FLOODS MENACE SOUTHWEST TOWNS RAZED BY TORNADO

TWISTER TOLL 3 CHILDREN; MANY HURT

Strip 40 Miles Wide Laid Waste by Gale; Rivers In Two States Rampage

International News Service

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Dec. 14.—In the wake of violent windstorms and torrential rains, exacting a known death toll of three children, the threat of a disastrous flood glowered over Southwestern Arkansas and Northern Louisiana today.

Bursting their embankments the waters of lake and creek menaced the city of Louisiana, Ark., and Monroe, La., forcing many hundreds to flee their homes and additional hundreds to prepare for flight.

Precipitating the panorama of death and destruction, a furious tornado swept over a strip of territory 40 miles wide. Besides the three children known to have perished, some 20 persons were injured in the storm. Four towns felt the fury of the giant twister and in two of them—Waldo and Camden, Ark.—property damage approached an estimated $1,000,000.

State highway patrolmen today were patrolling the stricken area, guarding against looters and assisting in the work of relief to the homeless refugees. Aided by volunteer workers, the soldiers were also searching the debris for possible additional victims.

The threat of inundation came with a serious downpour following the tornado. The Ouachita River, well on a rampage wreaking havoc in the village of Smackover, Ark., The rising rivers and creeks near Eldorado and Monroe washed out rails, highways and bridges disrupting train and automobile transportation. A dam burst at Shreveport. Station KWKH operated by W. K. Henderson, was silenced.

Fourscore Dead In Gales at Sea

LONDON, Dec. 14.—(INS.)—The toll of lives taken in terrific gales which swept European seas over the weekend mounted to nearly four score today. Shipping was paralyzed by the storms which swept waters and ports from the Mediterranean to the North Sea.

The Italian naval tug Teseo, which foundered off the coast of Sardinia, went down with an indefinite number of sailors. The Italian warship Trieste rushed to the scene and rescued the ship's officers and many of the crew, but between 30 and 40 were believed to have been lost.

The guardship of a local fishing fleet was wrecked off the coast of Algiers with a loss of 12 lives. In the Mediterranean, a French submarine chaser was reported missing with 13 aboard.

Many were believed to have been lost in smaller craft caught in the storms and unable to reach safety.

INDIANS SAVED BY FUEL

GALLUP, N. M., Dec. 14.—(AP.)—Coal smoke again is curling from the Presbyterian Navajo mission at Ganado, Ariz., a signal of victory over a blizzard which isolated the settlement of 350 persons in frigid temperatures five days ago.

Two trucks bucked their way through deep drifts from Gallup to the mission last night with three tons of coal to supplement emergency fuel derived from fences and nearby timber.

Dr. C. G. Salsbury said he was prepared to tear down wooden buildings if necessary. The mercury was 15 degrees below zero last night.

Hay has been dispatched for Navajo livestock in the Ramah district, where snow is drifted from five to 15 feet deep.

"Mr. Winston Churchill is resting comfortably, having sustained through a taxicab accident severe shock and concussion without any loss of consciousness.

"There are many large bruises on the right arm and chest and legs together with wounds of the soft tissues of the forehead and nose which have been sutured.

"X-ray examination is proceeding to determine the chest condition. Mr. Churchill will be unable to do active work for several weeks."

Mr. Churchill himself had given strict orders against any news of his condition being given out lest his friends in England be unduly alarmed.

LECTURES CANCELED

Meanwhile, representatives of the British statesman announced today that lectures scheduled for New York and Chicago this week had been canceled.

Mr. Churchill was to have lectured here today and tomorrow and in Chicago on Wednesday and Thursday.

The 57-year-old Briton arrived from England Friday. He was accompanied by Mrs. Churchill and their daughter Miss Diana Churchill.

He was run down by a taxicab late last night while crossing Fifth avenue at Seventy-seventh street after alighting from another cab.

Hunter Finds Body Of Miner in Woods

STEUBENVILLE, O., Dec. 14.—The body of Michael Bartos, 60, miner, missing from his home in Rush Run, O., for four days, was found in the hills near the town Saturday. Peter Monizzi, 38, of Tiltonville, O., made the find while hunting. Bartos, who relatives say was despondent over unemployment, ended his life with a shotgun after failing to burn himself to death in a brush pile, deputy sheriffs reported.

POOR DIRECTORS FIGHT AUDIT

Denying the jurisdiction of Common Pleas Court, the Allegheny County Poor Board today filed a petition asking proceedings by the Board of Visitors demanding an accounting of $743,000 be quashed.

This action means further delay in the battle over alleged irregularities in the Poor Board's affairs, as the petition will not be argued before February.

The Poor Board sets fourth that it has made an annual accounting to the County Controller for all years specified by the Board of Visitors except 1931; that these have been incorporated in his annual reports to court, and that these have been finally approved by the court, with the result that they are not subject to further adjudication.

MELLON SCORED AS BRITISH ALLY IN DEBT PLAN

Dill Scores Treasury Head, Calls for World Silver Parley to Settle Issue

DILL SCORES MELLON

An attack on President Hoover and Secretary Mellon for proposing a downward revision of debt payments featured a brief debate on the issue. Dill ridiculed Mellon's ability to handle this financial question, explaining that Mellon's plan for revising debt payments was to reduce the amount of British payments to the same number of British pounds that were due each year before England went off the gold standard. He added:

"This man who has been compared to Alexander Hamilton before hard times came, and who was described in one book as the man who stayed too long, tries to get us to balance the British budget. Does he take the members of Congress as a bunch of boobs?

"Why, every time Europe inflates her money or cheapens her money, we'd have to revise the debt if we followed his principle."

In the House, Representative Collier (Dem.), of Mississippi, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, introduced a resolution prepared at the Treasury ratifying the Hoover one-year moratorium. Hearings will begin tomorrow and Collier said he hoped the bill would pass by Saturday.

PROTEST MADE

His proposal, however, drew a protest on the floor of the House. Representative Rankin (Dem.), of Mississippi, objected, and asked:

"Is that all the consideration the committee will give this important matter?"

Rankin renewed his attack on the moratorium, saying if the committee investigated the foreign loans of private bankers the moratorium would be defeated. He charged the payments due the United States already have been deposited in New York banks, but that "this money will simply be transferred to the international bankers who are urging Congress to act before it has ample time to investigate."

The debt situation will be climaxed tomorrow by the technical default of 13 debtor nations on their final 1931 payments.

3 BANKS PAY DEPOSITORS

Depositors of three closed state banks today received the first payment on their deposits.

About 500 persons visited the Perry State Bank, 3908 Perrysville avenue, before 2 p. m. where they received checks for 15 per cent of their deposits.

At the McGillick Savings and Trust Company, 5729 Penn avenue, and the Hamilton State Bank, 801 Homewood avenue, officials said there was a steady line of withdrawing patrons. They could not estimate the number of depositors who presented their claims nor the amount of money which was withdrawn. McGillick depositors received a 5 per cent payment; those of the Hamilton bank, 10 per cent.

BILLIONS URGED FOR U. S. WORKS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—(INS.)—A resolution initiating a program, and using the machinery of the Federal Employment Stabilization Board created by the last Congress to get the project under way, was introduced today by Senator Wagner (Dem.), of New York.

The cost of the work would be defrayed by a long-term bond issue under the proposal. The Employment Stabilization Board was enacted by Congress last session as one of Wagner's unemployment relief bills.

The President having failed to call on Congress for such measures in his various messages last week, Wagner took the initiative with his resolution. He said:

"There is no more grievous extravaganie the United States is guilty of today than that of permitting valuable time and labor of its employed to go irretrievably to waste. That policy involves far more than a dollar and cents loss. It is daily sapping morale and wrecking character. It is undermining the health of the coming generation."

Red Leader Sought In Triangle Attack

CHICAGO, Dec. 14.—(INS.)—Edward G. Lewis was dying today while police searched for Albert Gervasi, secretary of the Communist party in Chicago. Lewis accused Gervasi of stealing his wife's affections.

Lewis told police just before he lapsed into a coma that he went to Gervasi's apartment to find his wife and the Communist official fired four bullets into his body.

ACTRESS RAPS RISQUE PLAYS

Modern drama must be free from "filth" to measure up to the ideals of Channing Pollock, famous playwright, Miss Gladys Thornton, member of the cast of Pollock's play, "The House Beautiful," declared last night in the Christ Methodist Episcopal Church, Center and Liberty avenues.

Miss Thornton said:

"The modern play, to really interest its public, must be interesting, it must have something to say. It must be free of salacious filth, because the modern public will not receive the filthy type of play."

She told of Pollock's play, which opens here tonight, and presented dramatic readings from it. Miss Thornton continued:

"The time has come for the 'debunking' of the stage. The modern play must present life as it really is, beautiful and vibrant. Much of the sordidness of the type of play which has heretofore been produced must be eliminated."

Case Against Driver, Heiress Bride Fails

MONTCLAIR, N. J., Dec. 14.—(INS.)—Bevis T. Pickerell, truck driver, and his 15-year-old bride, Beatrice, today were given leave to live happily ever after.

A motion was granted by Police Recorder P. Henry Strazza to dismiss the complaint brought against Pickerell when his wealthy father-in-law, John C. Barclay, failed to appear to press his charge.

Asks More Federal Funds for Child Aid

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—(AP.)—"Greatly expanded" resources to meet increased demands upon its services were urged today by the Children's Bureau. Its chief, Miss Grace Abbott, pointed out in her annual report to the Secretary of Labor:

"Children suffer the most serious permanent losses in periods of depression and should be the first to be considered in planning remedial measures."

Heart Disease Kills Former Salem Mayor

ELKINS, W. Va., Dec. 14.—(AP.)—Ernest Randolph, 62, father of Jennings Randolph, director of athletics of Davis and Elkins College, died suddenly yesterday while talking to his wife and son. Death was attributed to heart disease.

BEAMISH CALLS VOTE MACHINES HERE 'UNFIT'

Secretary of Commonwealth Urges Changes in Law; War on G. O. P. Declared

Every voting machine bought by Allegheny County is unfit for use, according to Richard J. Beamish, secretary of the Commonwealth, at a banquet in Roosevelt Hotel last night under auspices of the Roosevelt Civic Legion in honor of County Commissioner C. C. McGovern and Commissioner-elect C. M. Barr. McGovern has not returned from a vacation in Havana.

Beamish explained that he came to the dinner as the personal representative of Gov. Pinchot, intimate friend of McGovern, deamish continued:

"The machines can be made right and they must be right before they can be adopted by this state. They must conform to the specifications ordered by me. To you, Mr. Barr, I say, keep the county's purse-strings tight; do not pay for the machines until they have passed all tests."

LAW IGNORED

Beamish said he has learned some interesting things since he joined Pinchot's cabinet. He declared that the law requiring every candidate who spends $50 to file an itemized expense account has been a "dead letter" since it was enacted 25 years ago.

Barr said that he addressed a meeting yesterday afternoon and had declared war on State Senator James J. Coyne. He said it was not against Coyne as an individual, but as the leader of political thought that independents oppose. Barr said:

"If you are going to follow the leadership of McGovern, Mansfield and Barr, send a delegation to Harrisburg next year that will respond only to the people. There were 41,000 tax receipts issued this year in groups of hundreds to a few district leaders.

"Each of those receipts was intended to be used to place a name on the voting lists."

URGES NEW LAWS

"We should have a delegation in Harrisburg that will help pass laws, correcting abuses in the tax assessment board and prevent the wholesale issuance of tax receipts. Then again we need a law eliminating the delinquent tax collector who gets 10 per cent commission on all he collects. I understand the collections for next year are estimated at $2,500,000 and on the 10 per cent basis it would appear that $250,000 would be available for a relative of the Mayor's if reports are true."

Councilman-elect P. J. McArdle said:

"Secretary Beamish told us not one of the voting machines is fit to use. We can say to him that other political machines in this locality have lost their power to function."

Deputy Attorney General Ralph H. Smith made a plea to follow the recent victory at the polls by setting aside petty jealousies in the effort to carry out constructive policies.

Other speakers were Father James R. Cox, A. D. Brandon, James O. Corbett, Thomas H. Hester, H. C. Werkmaster, Alexander P. Lindsay, Gen. Churchill B. Mehard, Edward O. Tabor, Henry Tranter, Frank Vittor and Jacob Yeager.

Man Dies at 91 Grieving for Wife

AURORA, Ill., Dec. 14.—(AP.)—Charles H. Vosburgh, 91, who, with his wife, said they never had a quarrel or scolded one another during their 68 years of married life, is dead.

Friends of the aged man said he had grieved constantly since the recent death of his wife. His death occurred at his home, Saturday. Both Mr. and Mrs. Vosburgh were born in Luzerne County, Pennsylvania.

Portuguese Killed In Radical Rio

EVORA, Portugal, Dec. 14.—(AP.)—One person was killed last night in a hostile demonstration against the government of President Carmona in Evora, capital of the Province of Alemtejo.

Rioters hurled bombs and fired shots as a delegation from Lisbon was returning to the railroad station after a banquet, arranged in honor of Carmona government. Ten persons were injured and more than 60 arrested.

TORNADO-DEMOLISHED HOME AT TEXARKANA, TEX., BLOWN DOWN FRIDAY . . . FLOODS THREATENED GREAT AREA TODAY

Cantor Hears Pinchot Faith In 'Handlebar' Moustache

HARRISBURG, Dec. 14.—(AP.)—Gov. Pinchot believes that handlebars are at least something to hang on to in an effort to ride into the White House on a bicycle, despite the statement of Eddie Cantor in a current issue of a monthly magazine.

Cantor, in his article, said that Gov. Pinchot, whom he called "Amos" is out of the running for the presidency.

"For the reason that the White House would have to be remodeled to permit him to enter with his handlebar moustache."

Gov. Pinchot yesterday wrote to Cantor, saying:

"I understand that you think it impossible to get into the White House on a bicycle. With the government still doing nothing about the depression except wish on the short end of a wishbone, the fellow who still has a bicycle left has the jump on the rest of the country that's junking its automobiles and walking. Handlebars are at least something to hang on to.

"I have never been an exponent of the close shave theory of politics. For a lot of people, it goes against the grain. You aren't complimenting a man when you call him smooth-faced.

"In conclusion, let me remind you that there are two ways of going through a door.

"Yours for the return of the moustache-cup and the trouser-clip.

"GIFFORD PINCHOT."

"Please note: I'm not Amos."

Boy Scout Found Hanged; Death Termed Accident

NORTHEAST HARBOR, Me., Dec. 14.—(AP.)—Dr. E. N. Morrison, medical examiner, today found that the death of Everett Allen, 14-year-old Boy Scout, found yesterday with his hands tied behind his back hanging from a tree on the summer estate of Harriet Rowe, of Philadelphia, was due to accidental hanging.

Dr. Morrison reported the boy's neck had been broken. Allen was said by his friends to have often indulged in knot-tying and once before had fallen from a tree while performing a stunt with ropes.

The boy was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Allen, formerly of Dexter.

FORMER WATCH DIAL PAINTERS PERILED

Urged to Take Immediate Treatment for Malady; 18 of 50 Workers Dead

By LEIGH MATTESON
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—Nineteen girls, formerly employed for a year or longer as watch dial painters at an Orange (N. J.) plant, are urged to go at once to the nearest hosiptal for X-ray examination. They then should keep in a constant communication with Dr. Harrison S. Martland, of 180 Clinton avenue, Newark.

For these girls, unknowingly, probably are doomed to die from a slow and terrible malady induced by radium poisonings, which already has killed 18 of the 50 girls who worked a year or more at the plant during the period from 1917 to 1924. In the latter year the federal government forced their former employers to protect workers from the radium paint.

FANTASTIC DEATH WATCH

Dr. Martland now is sitting in a fantastic death watch over 13 of the former dial painters. He has been able to track down this many of them during the past three years.

He explained, however, that 19 of the 50 girls who had spent over a year at the plant, had dropped out of sight. Probably many are married and living in remote regions of the country.

All these young women, whatever their present condition, have in them the seeds of almost certain death by cancer. Dr. Martland recently has discovered that the girls who literally ate radium at the plant while moistening their lips, are dying of cancer if they escaped the earlier malady, necrosis of the jaw.

DEVELOP CANCER

The bits of radium in the dial paint, dropping in the crevices between the teeth of the workers, lodged in the bones of the jaws and finally passed to all part of the skeleton. In those who accidentally absorbed the most radium, death was relatively prompt.

The last of these deaths occurred on November 14, 1928, but since then more of the former dial painters have died.

All these latter deaths were due to cancer of the bones of the radium victims. A total of five such deaths have occurred. Among the 13 former workers at present in communication with Dr. Martland, three are in various stages of developing cancer.

STORE HELD UP DOWNTOWN

As Albert Furst, clerk, inserted a key in the front door the robber pressed a gun to his back and commanded speed. Thinking it was a fellow employe, Furst said:

"Quit your fooling, I'm not in the humor this morning.

To which the robber replied:

"Get that door open and hurry up about it.

Furst complied, he told police and when the door was opened he was marched to the safe in the rear. Furst protested that he didn't know the combination and the robber struck him. Thirty-five dollars was taken from Furst's pockets and then the robber went to a showcase and picked out two revolvers and a hunting knife according to the employe. The robber fled as other employes arrived.

Annie Russell Plans To Return to Stage

WINTER PARK, Fla., Dec. 14.—(AP.)—After 13 years retirement, Miss Annie Russell will return to the stage in a theater erected with the proceeds of a $100,000 gift by Mrs. Edward W. Bok.

The theater, under construction on the Rollins College campus here, will be completed in a few days. Miss Russell was last seen on the stage as Roxalie Lagrange in "The Thirteenth Chair" in 1917-18. The actress is in her late sixties.

UPSETS, ESCAPES DEATH

Bereaved Debutante at Wheel in Auto's Plunge

MISS ROSE E. W. ALLEN . . . DRIVING "AT BREAKNECK SPEED"

Miss Allen, the Philadelphia debutante whose brother is awaiting trial for the death of her fiance, miraculously uninjured when her speeding auto plunged off the road, overturned near Philadelphia. She climbed out shaking, sobbing and police won't arrest her.

ALLEN'S SISTER SAFE IN UPSET

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 14.—(AP.)—Miss Rose Allen, whose brother Edwin is awaiting trial for slaying her sweetheart, Francis A. Donaldson III, narrowly escaped death Saturday night when her automobile overturned on a curve near here. The accident was disclosed yesterday by State Patrolman D. E. Hatter, who was riding behind her and who said she was driving at "breakneck speed."

The debutante climbed from her automobile shaking and sobbing but unhurt. She said she was on her way to a dinner party but was so unnerved by the mishap that she was taken home. Patrolman Hatter said he thought she had received "about enough retribution for reckless driving" and that he would not arrest her for speeding.

Weather BalksRudy's Flight to Meet Bride

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(AP.)—The curious crowds that "stared" Rudy Vallee and his bride, the former Fay Webb, out of a honeymoon in Atlantic City last summer had not a single peep at them yesterday when Mrs. Vallee returned from visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Webb, of Santa Monica, Cal.

The radio crooner went to Newark airport early in the morning to fly to Albany to meet his bride, but the weather was so bad the plan was cancelled. He motored back to New York, took a train for Harmon and there the reunion was effected.

WOMAN AGAIN SHOT BY MATE

LORAIN, O., Dec. 14.—(AP.)—For the second time, Mrs. Mary Strong, 49, was shot last night, police said, by a husband who committed suicide.

Mrs. Strong was seriously wounded when Andrew Strong, believed by police to be her fifth husband, shot her and killed himself.

Seven years ago, Mrs. Strong, then the wife of John La Buda, escaped death when he turned a gun on her and then killed their 12-year-old daughter and himself, according to Marshall Herman Hall.

About 22.0 foot stage indicated for Pittsburgh early Tuesday morning.

HITLER WORRIES EX-KAISER ON BIG INCOME

Wilhelm Fearful for Million A Year as Fascists Rise Toward Rule in Germany

Universal Service.

LONDON, Dec. 14.—From his exile in Doorn, Holland, ex-Kaiser Wilhelm is watching with the worried eyes of a man who has $1,000,000 a year at stake the rise of Adolf Hitler to power.

The Daily Herald says today that Wilhelm fears the loss of this yearly income he derives from properties in Germany should either the Fascists or Communists come to power, but that he is most concerned about the Fascists and their vigorous chieftain.

According to the Laborite newspaper, the former emperor is receiving detailed reports of Hitler's every move by courier. He is also engaged in writing a book defending himself against attacks in the memoirs of the late Chancellor Von Buelow.

Old German Castle Raided In Quest of Hitler Paper

HEIDELBERG, Dec. 14.—(INS.)—Squads of police today raided the ancient Castle of Rotenberg, owned by Herr Von Reichenau, 75, former imperial diplomat and one-time secretary of the German embassy in Washington, in search of a secret Hitler document they believed was concealed upon the premises.

The raid broke up a tea party staged by Von Reichenau for 40 men and women guests, many of them well known in scientific and literary fields. Although they failed to find the document they sought, the police seized a number of private letters written to Von Reichenau by Adolf Hitler, Fascist leader, and President Von Hindenburg.

Hitler Leaves Berlin, Bruening Letter Ready

BERLIN, Dec. 14.—(AP.)—When correspondents called at Adolf Hitler's hotel today for the open letter to Chancellor Bruening, which he had promised them, they discovered that he had gone to Munich last night without leaving any explanation for his departure.

There was no official confirmation, but it was learned that the police had planned to arrest the National Socialist leader for violation of the "Christmas truce" on political agitation if he received the foreign press again.

MUNICH, Dec. 14.—(AP.)—National Socialist headquarters announced today that Adolf Hitler had completed a 9,000-word open letter to Chancellor Bruening for publication in tomorrow's edition of the party newspaper.

There was no explanation of Hitler's sudden departure from Berlin last night.

KANE TO RETURN TO TEACHING

HAMPTON, Va., Dec. 14.—(AP.)—Prof. Elisha Kent Kane, acquitted late Saturday of a charge of drowning his wife, said last night he expected to return to his duties as professor of romance languages at the University of Tennessee in a few days.

The faculty there, he said, had indicated they regarded the decision of the Elizabeth City County jury as a complete vindication. The jury took the case Saturday night after a five-day trial and deliberated three hours and 40 minutes.

An unofficial report indicated the jury stood 11 to 1 for acquittal on the first ballot. Just as the clock struck 12, a unanimous decision having been reached, the verdict "Not guilty" was written on the back of the indictment.

Coal Man Guarded Following Threats

TAZEWELL, Va., Dec. 14.—(AP.)—Armed guards today patrolled the grounds surrounding the home of A. Z. Litz, millionaire coal operator, following receipt of two letters threatening his life unless he turned over $6,000.

SUICIDE HOAX, DIVA SAFE

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(INS.)—Mme. Santa Biondo, Metropolitan Opera Company soprano, who vanished after writing letters in which she threatened to throw herself into the river, was safe today, Alfred Burroughs, attorney, disclosed.

The singer, Burroughs said, called on him and told him "minor financial troubles and the strain of frequent rehearsals" caused her to leave her hotel apartment and the city "for several days' rest." Burroughs declared she intended to stay with out-of-town friends for two or three more days before returning to her home.

Mme. Biondo, he said, regretted writing the suicide notes.

The attorney revealed he had been retained recently by Mme. Biondo in connection with a fund of $78,000 she said she entrusted to a man to invest for her, but, whom she said, returned only $8,000 of this money to her.

Engineer Suicide After Losing Old Railway 'Run'

MEADVILLE, Pa., Dec. 14.—(AP.)—Charles P. Mitchell, 65, an engineer on the Bessemer Railroad, committed suicide by shooting yesterday. Mitchell had been taken off his old "run"—from Meadville to Linesville—last week and given one on the main line. He did not like the transfer and had been melancholy. Three children survive.

Jane Addams Rallies Following Operation

BALTIMORE, Dec. 14.—(AP.)—The condition of Jane Addams, internationally known advocate of peace, who underwent a major abdominal operation at Johns Hopkins Hospital here Saturday, was said by hospital officials to be "quite satisfactory."

Telegrams of sympathy from friends in all parts of the country with wishes for a speedy recovery continued to arrive at the hospital and the headquarters of Miss Addams' secretary.

WOMAN NAMED OPERA HEAD

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 14.—(AP.)—Mrs. William C. Hammer has been elected general manager and vice president of the Philadelphia Grand Opera Company. She will assume the business management and artistic direction at once.

Her selection as successor to her husband, who died unexpectedly November 30, was announced yesterday. Mrs. Hammer has been general director of the company since its organization in 1926, a post which she will continue to hold.

Other women who have served as general directors of major grand opera companies are Mary Garden, who headed the Chicago Opera Association, now the Chicago Civic Opera Company, and Anita Colombo, who was director of La Scala Opera, in Milan, Italy, in 1930.

'Petting' Brings Ban On College Fetes

LARAMIE, Wyo., Dec. 14.—(AP.)—A ban on all social functions at the University of Wyoming until further notice has been announced following a meeting in President A. G. Crane's office of faculty members and a student committee.

The announcement said it was decided "stringent action" was necessary to correct practices objected to by President Crane, who said he found students "petting and drinking in parked automobiles during a college dance intermission December 4.

Turkey Executes Woman for Killing

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Dec. 14.—(AP.)—Fatima Haim, the first woman ever executed in public in Turkey, has hanged at dawn today.

It was bitterly cold, but hundreds of peasants camped out all night to watch the stolid Fatima go to her death without a whimper. She killed another woman with an ax and took $100 from the woman's husband who had incited the murder so that he could marry again.

BRIDGE BATTLE HIGH POINTS REVIEWED

Breath-taking Hands Stir Players; Peeping Gallery Of Kibitzers Ejected

By MRS. JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON
World's Greatest Woman Bridge Player.
(Copyright, 1931, by International News Service.)

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—I welcomed with enthusiasm my Sunday rest from the gruelling 150-rubber contract bridge match being played by my husband, Ely Culbertson, and myself, against Sidney Lenz and Oswald Jacoby, which is to decide the respective merits of the Culbertson and official systems. We have now completed 33 rubbers and although according to the conditions I must play at least 42 rubbers more before my husband may choose another partner I doubt if a more exciting session will present itself.

Last Saturday night's bridge battle was the most furious we have experienced. The hands were so breath-taking that both the players and the large gallery of newspapermen, who are natural-born kibitzers, were electrified.

I heard a great deal of commotion behind the large screen thrown across our drawing room in order to separate the onlookers from the players, and I felt uncomfortable at the dozens of pairs of eyes gleaming intensely through the cracks and openings of the screen.

KIBITZER OUSTED

How I managed to follow without missing a step the furious pace set by my husband, who, as though inspired, continually hurled forth slam bids, startling passes, doubles and redoubles with deadly precision of inferences, I do not know.

Ely also noticed the baneful effect upon me of those hypnotizing staring eyes, and being just as solicitous of his partner's morale as is a general of the morale of his troops, he ruthlessly ordered the room cleared.

We began at the twenty-ninth rubber, with our side 5,650 points down, but with spirits undaunted. In fact, my husband even renewed through the press his offer of bets (all his winnings are to go to the New York Infirmary for Women and Children). The first four deals were uneventful but the one hundred and fifty-ninth deal brought a beautifully developed slam.

SLAM IN SPADES

The cards were: East dealer, East-West vulnerable.

Spade—J-9.
Hearts—J-10-6-4
Diamonds—10-9
Clubs—10-9-6-5-3.
WEST (Mr. Culbertson)	EAST (Mrs. Culbertson)
Spade—A-Q-8-5.	Spade—K-10-6-3
Hearts—K-3.	Hearts—Q-9-8-7-2.
Diamonds—K-J	Diamonds—A-Q-7-5.
Clubs—A-K-J.	Clubs—Q-2.
SOUTH (Mr. Jacoby)
Spades—7-4-2.
Hearts—A-5.
Diamonds—8-6-4-3-2.
Clubs—8-7-4.

Sitting East, I opened the bidding with 1 heart. South passed and my partner made a jump bid of 2 spades.

A jump bid in a new suit is a forcing bid, announcing a game at some bid yet to be selected and forbidding either partner to pass until a game declaration is agreed upon. These forcing takeouts are the backbone of the Culbertson system and are so important that they were adopted also in the "official" system.

Mr. Lenz passed my husband's 2-spade bid and I bid 3 spades, which shows to partner good trump support, for otherwise my response would have been 2 no trumps. My partner, feeling that I might not carry him to a slam, quite correctly took the initiative by bidding 6 spades, and easily made his contract. We won a rubber of 1,690 points. I believe the largest since the match started.

JACOBY TRAPPED

On the next hand Mr. Jacoby attacked at the wrong time and was wrecked on the invisible rocks of distribution. He was penalized 600 points, and only his brilliant self-control under stress saved him from a more severe loss. After desperately trying a heart bid he was finally maneuvered into playing hand at 2 spades doubled, and that after I had originally bid 1 spade. The hand follows (dealer, South, neither side vulnerable):

NORTH (Mr. Lenz)
Spade—6.
Hearts—9-6-5.
Diamonds—Q-J-8-3-2.
Clubs—K-Q-J-8.
WEST (Mr. Culbertson)	EAST (Mrs. Culbertson)
Spades—10-9.	Spades—A-Q-8-4-3.
Hearts—J-10-8-4-3.	Heart—A.
Diamonds—A-K-9-4.	Diamonds—10-7-5.
Clubs—A-6.	Clubs—10-9-5-4-3.
SOUTH (Mr. Jacoby)
Spades—K-7-5-4-3-2.
Hearts—K-Q-7-2.
Diamond—6.
Clubs—7-2.

The bidding was interesting:

SOUTH	WEST	NORTH	EAST
Pass	1 diamond	Pass	1 spade
2 hearts	double	Pass	Pass
3 spades	Pass	Pass	double
Pass	Pass	Pass

The second rubber was won by 1,670 points, which reduced the opponent's lead to 2,290 points. Although the opponents won the following three rubbers, we ended the session by being 810 points up on the evening and in total only 4,840 points behind.

FAILURE SEEN FOR RELIEF MEASURES

Assembly Enters Sixth Week With Little Hope of Program Being Enacted

International News Service.

HARRISBURG, Dec. 14 — Pennsylvania's extraordinary legislative session entered its sixth week today with members of both houses harassed by predictions that the session ultimately will adjourn without having attained its objective—relief for the state's jobless and hungry.

From Speaker C. Jay Goodnough, a supporter of Gov. Gifford Pinchot came the pessimistic observation that executive veto and stubborn refusal by the legislators to pass administration measures will extinguish the flame of hope to which the idle and destitute are clinging.

VETO TO STAND

The speaker pointed out that certain veto awaits final passage of the Talbot bill appropriating $10,000,000 from the general fund to the poor districts. Goodnough brushed aside the possibility of over-riding the expected veto by declaring that neither Senate nor House would assume responsibility for such action.

Speaking for himself personally, Goodnough ventured the opinion the Legislature should remain in session for at least three days of Christmas week, either pass or defeat Gov. Pinchot's "prosperity bond" issue and adjourn sine die.

SENATE DEFIANT

Despite Goodnough's predictions, Senate leaders planned to push the Talbot bill to enactment tonight, lay it on the Governor's desk and recess Wednesday until January 4, forcing the executive to veto or sign the measure during the interim. Groundwork for overriding the veto already is being planned, but temperate leaders of both houses are counselling caution in considering this course.

The Pinchot program, which provided for a tax on cigarets, billboards and gasoline in addition to a $55,000,000 bond issue, has been battered beyond recognition. The billboard and cigaret tax measures are dead, the two cent gasoline has been slashed in half and the prosperity bond total has been reduced to $15,000,000.

BRIDE IN COURT REUNION

MR. AND MRS. BEVIS PICKERELL . . . . . SHE WENT HIS BAIL

The courtroom reunion between bride and bridegroom as Mrs. Pickerell, the former Miss Beatrice Barclay, 15, provided $2,000 bail to free him after his arrest on the charges of her father, John C. Barclay, retired Western Union vice president, who said he married the girl and misrepresented his age as 19 when he's 29. They live at Montclair, N. J.

CHICAGO LEADS FOR G.O.P. MEET

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14 — (INS) — A harassed group of G. O. P. leaders comprising the membership of the Republican National Committee assembled today for the meeting that will determine when, where and how President Hoover is to be renominated.

The executive committee got together this afternoon to draw up a program for the full committee to follow. Tomorrow, the 53 committeemen and 53 committeewomen—or their proxies—will decide upon the city for the Republican National convention. It appeared that Chicago had the edge with Cleveland a second choice.

A plan has been perfected whereby there will be 1,152 delegates to the 1932 convention as compared with 1,089 in 1928. Fifty-two of the 63 new delegates will come from Southern states—a fact which will make easier the renomination of Mr. Hoover. Pennsylvania is due to lose four seats, getting 75 instead of 79 delegates.

Jay Cooke, wealthy Philadelphian, and Gen. Edward Martin, Pennsylvania state chairman, were here for the meeting and it was expected the national body will accept Cooke's credentials for the national committee post which was resigned last year by Gen. W. W. Atterbury in his bolt from Gov. Pinchot of Pennsylvania.

Grandi Riot Case Argument Delayed

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 14 — (AP) — Argument on the appeal of Orlando Spartaco from his conviction and sentence to two years imprisonment for inciting to riot during the visit here of Foreign Minister Dino Grandi of Italy was postponed today until Wednesday.

Nudists Vindicated By N. Y. Magistrate

baffled Napoleon, and wearied him as he waited at Boulogne with 200,000 men for the invasion of England.

THEY LIVE, in dim silence side by side these two men of all ever born most important to England's safety and neither knows that the other is close by.

Do the British visit the gloomy tombs, as Russians flock to the shrine of Lenine? They do not. American visitors, with a guide, visit the crypt occasionally, their whispered conversation including a few remarks about Napoleon, and a great many about Lady Hamilton.

Please excuse the absence of news today.

Salesman Hangs Self After Losing Job

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Dec. 14 — (AP) — After losing his job as a salesman, Neal Sackett, 41, ended his life by hanging. The body was found yesterday in his home. His widow and three children survive.

PRINCE ON TRIP WITHOUT BRIDE

BUDAPEST, Dec. 14 — (INS) — A report that Prince Nicholas, of Rumania, had left Bucharest without his bride, the former Mme. Jana Lucia Deleti, passing through Budapest on his way to Germany, was published by the local newspaper Magyar Orszag today.

The paper declared Nicholas told their reporter he was going to Germany for a short time, but would return later to Bucharest. Questioned concerning the attitude of his brother, King Carol, toward his bride, Nicholas was reported to have said:

"People are apt to forget easily."

Bucharest reports declared Carol was continuing his attempts to induce Nicholas to accept the Supreme Court's annulment of his marriage, withdrawing from the limelight with Mme. Deleti "until the world forgets the scandal."

LONDON, Dec. 14 — (AP) — George G. Tomlin, elder son of Lord Tomlin, distinguished British jurist, was killed yesterday when his plane crashed and burned in Essex.

Silk Hat Boosts Business for Boy Newsie

Combating the depression, a Pittsburgh newsboy appeared at his post, Sixth and Wiley avenues, where he has sold papers for the past year and a half, attired in a silk top hat and long-tailed dinner jacket. He is Lawrence Obermeier, 22, of 1245 Oakmont street, Crafton Heights. He said:

"It pays to advertise, these days. A second-hand man lets me wear these. Sure, sales have picked up."

State Road Workers Show 15,000 Gain

HARRISBURG, Dec. 14.—(AP.)—Gov. Pinchot today said the State Highway Department had 15,000 more men on its payroll in the week ending November 28 than in the corresponding week in 1930.

On that date the department had 22,987 men, as compared with 7,600 in November, 1930.

SQUIRE MORGAN DIVORCED

Stewart McKee Morgan was granted a divorce by default today from Mrs. Margaret Morgan, Sewickley justice of the peace, according to a dispatch from Reno, Nev.

Morgan testified before Judge Thomas F. Moran, in Reno, that he and his wife had not lived together since he returned from the World War in 1919. In 1923 they met in the East, he testified, and she told him it would be impossible for them to live together.

Morgan testified:

"She told me the only man she really cared for was killed in the war."

He said he had established a trust fund for his wife and son, Stewart, Jr., which yields $1,800 a year.

In filing the suit Morgan's attorneys had charged that Mrs. Morgan's desire for a professional career had led to the separation.

M'GOVERN O.K.'S PAY CUTS

versation from New York today, having just returned from a two-weeks vacation to Bermuda. He said:

"We simply do not have in the County Treasury the money to pay the employes at their old rate of salary. Money is short in the counts because of past extravagance, and the cut was something which had to be done. I can't say now whether it will be permanent or not.

"I had a talk with Babcock about laying off the 168 employes. I didn't know he was going to do it, but the answer to that question is the same as the preceding one. We haven't got the money."

The first information McGovern had of the appointment of Gollmar made by Gov. Pinchot was receipt of a radiogram from the Sun-Telegraph. He was completely puzzled at the time as to what happened to bring such precipitate action when he had an implied agreement with the Governor that nothing would be done about the position until he returned.

TALKED TO PINCHOT

McGovern said:

"The day before I went away, I called the Governor and told him I would be back in two weeks, and that I would like to discuss appointment of a Sheriff with him upon my return. He knew that I did not favor the appointment of Gollmar. I thought everything would wait another conference, as the questions involved were so serious as to warrant complete discussion. He said my return would be time enough to discuss the matter.

"Now I learn the resignation of Sheriff Robert S. Cain was sent to the Governor during my absence, creating a vacancy I did not understand would exist until January, when Cain becomes County Treasurer. It is strange that the resignation came at this opportune moment, and I think it could have been held up until my return, so long as the Governor was compelled to appoint a successor as soon as the resignation was accepted."

While McGovern was reluctant to discuss local development in advance of his return to the city and an opportunity to learn conditions first hand, it was evident he believed something had been put over on the Independent group, which won a smashing victory against the organization in the September primary and November election.

COYNE VICTORY

It was apparent he believed that the Sheriff's office would continue to be dominated by the Republican machine rather than be responsive to Independents in their effort to clean up the county. Gollmar's appointment at this time is generally attributed to the influence of Senator James J. Coyne, city organization leader.

Coyne is being credited with inducing Cain to resign in McGovern's absence and persuading the Governor to accept the resignation immediately. Cain has been aligned with Coyne politically, and would not be averse to putting a spoke in the Independent wheel.

McGovern made it plain that he believed Gollmar was entitled to some consideration from Pinchot, but that he should have been given advancement in his profession, law, rather than be named Sheriff.

He declined to comment on the speech yesterday of Commissioner-elect C. M. Barr, attacking Coyne. He explained that he preferred to wait to read the full text of Barr's speech.

COYNE MUM ON BARR ATTACK

their police force, and we again won out.

"McGovern and I will be able to take care of ourselves. I am making a plea on your own behalf. I'm pleading for the tax burden that you and later your children must assume. This burden has risen from $52,000,000 to $108,000,000 in the last eight years. The tax rate from 2.5 mills to 4.5 mills. The County Treasurer has told me that the county is practically bankrupt.

"In the audit we intend to start after January 4 we'll find out why certain warrants were cashed at banks instead of going through the Controller's office. We'll find out why printing company bills, totaling thousands of dollars, for which no work was done, were paid."

CLASHES WITH MANSFIELD

Barr and W. D. Mansfield, also County Commissioner-elect, exchanged remarks bristling with hostility. Mansfield said:

"I am the spare tire on the county vehicle. All I have to do is wait for a puncture or a blow out to permit me to step in and do my part."

Barr replied:

"I'll serve notice on the Senator now. If he wants to be a spare tire, its up to him."

Mansfield had amplified his position by saying:

"Whatever position I am placed in, I shall do as I have done in the past—accept that position and represent as well as I can the people of my district. It will be a pleasure to do everything I can to assist the other Commissioners in bringing about the kind of government you are going to demand in Allegheny County, and I hope to have a full part in the readjustment that must take place."

TRAFFIC DEATH TOLL DROPS

Traffic fatalities in Pittsburgh this year will be 15 per cent lower than last year's toll and will reach the lowest total since 1928, City Traffic Engineer Lewis W. McIntyre indicate in his November report to the Better Traffic Committee. The report shows that traffic deaths numbered 150 for the first 11 months of the year, as compared to 174 last year during the same period, a decrease of 13.8 per cent. As December, 1930, was an exceptionally heavy month, with 24 deaths reported, the decrease this year should amount to approximately 15 per cent by the end of the year, McIntyre stated.

The total of traffic deaths last year was 198; in 1929 it was 180, and 152 in 1928.

Fifteen persons, one a child, met death in Pittsburgh traffic last month, the analysis shows. This compares with 14 in November, 1930, two of them children.

For the first 11 months of last year, 31 children were killed in traffic, the same as this year's toll. Adult fatalities showed a decrease in the period from 143 to 119.

LAWYER FACES CHECK CHARGE

Attorney Robert H. Leitch, with offices in the Park Building, who last week forfeited $4,000 bond in Criminal Court when he failed to appear to stand trial in two charges of embezzlement by agent, was in the county jail today facing five additional charges of passing worthless checks, police said.

Leitch was arrested Saturday night at his home, 954 Bay Ridge avenue, Brookline, by a constable from the office of Justice of the Peace Richard E. Lloyd, of Munhall, before whom the five charges had been filed.

Complainants in the cases were Elizabeth Toomy, Laura McNichols, Mrs. George Henning, Robert E. Schilling and Adeline G. Pollock. On each of the charges Leitch is alleged to have passed worthless checks in payment of funds of an estate of which the complainants were beneficiaries.

VET'S FLOGGING ROUSES LEGION

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Dec. 14.—(AP.)—Legionnaires prepared a request today for an official investigation of the whipping of James C. Kirby, 31-year-old convict, at Atmore prison farm a few hours before his discharge December 7.

Col. W. D. A. Anderson, commander of the Mobile (Ala.) Legion Post, announced plans for the investigation.

Prison records showed Kirby was administered 21 lashes after a refusal to work. He had been convicted and given a $25 fine and a suspended sentence on a trespassing charge. He worked out the fine.

After the whipping, Kirby, an ex-soldier, was advised by physicians to enter the general hospital at Atmore for treatment. Dr. J. MacBell, who examined Kirby yesterday, said:

"There can be no doubt that he was whipped unmercifully."

Milk Dealers Fight To Keep Inspection

Proposed elimination of the dairy division of the Health Department was protested as a false economy move by the Pittsburgh Milk Dealers' Association in a letter to Council.

The association urges retention of the present milk inspection system in the interest of public health, stating that state inspection is not an adequate substitute.

Man Killed, Woman Overcome by Fumes

William H. Wage, 45, a Negro of 2141 Hemlock street, was killed and Anna Young, 30, a Negro of Crawford street, was overcome by fumes from an open gas stove in a house at 2408 Bedford avenue early yesterday, according to a police report. At Passavant Hospital it was said the condition of the woman was favorable.

ROBBER SLAIN IN MONESSEN

MONESSEN, Pa., Dec. 14.—As he held 18 card players, whom he had robbed, lined against a wall with their hands up, Walter Burns, 36, Negro of 124 Cass avenue, masquerading as a woman, was shot fatally by Police Lieut. Louis Kichinko here early today. Burns died an hour later.

The men were playing cards in the home of Mrs. Emma Miller, 1452 Schoonmaker avenue, at 1:15 o'clock this morning when Burns, dressed in a short blue dress and wearing a woman's hat, with a handkerchief as a mask, entered. Waving a revolver he ordered the card players to line up and forced Raymond McMullen to collect from them. George Pierce was slow in arising and a shot was fired close to his feet.

McMullen collected $3.40, which Burns said was not enough and ordered another collection. Other occupants of the house, hearing the shot, summoned police. As Lieut. Kichinko opened the back door, he saw the men lined against the wall. They feared to answer the policeman's questions and the officer discovered Burns behind the door. He fired as Burns was raising his revolver.

Tearing the mask from the robber's face, Kichinko recognized him as an election officer of the Fourth Ward and a World War veteran.

For those Grand Christmas Parties

The Pitt Yuletide Festival, the Inter-Collegiate Ball, private parties—all as gay as ever, while smart party clothes in Horne's Night-Life Corner cost so much less.

Misses' Frocks $25 Brilliant frocks that include everything that's chic in afterdark fashions . . . Crystal-beaded straps, "bare-back" decolletages, square decolletages, covered shoulders . . . Triple-sheer crepes, flat crepe and satin; in gleaming white, seraph blue, emerald green, carnival red, geranium blossom, Gainsborough blue, black.

Long Wraps $19.50—$29.50 To look like a tall, slender princess, wear a long velvet evening wrap . . . At these moderate prices, wraps with romantic sleeves, flattering collars of white hare, and fine white crepe linings. Chiefly in black, also in tropic blue, green and Japanese red.

...Horne's, Night-Life Corner, Second Floor...

Chinese Appenzell Handkerchiefs

3 for $1.00

Lovely Chinese Appenzells have long been considered one of the most exquisite of handkerchief gifts—but no other Christmas ever saw them priced so low!

The sheerest of white linens—with the delicate blue-white embroidery in the four corners—or blue-white punch-work in a deep border—all with embroidered edges. A single one will make a charming remembrance—three will be a perfect feminine gift!

Christmas Dresses

In a Special Selling!

$1.35

Dresses that have all been considerably higher priced . . . the sweetest little frocks you ever saw—in a regular "gift feast" at only $1.35.

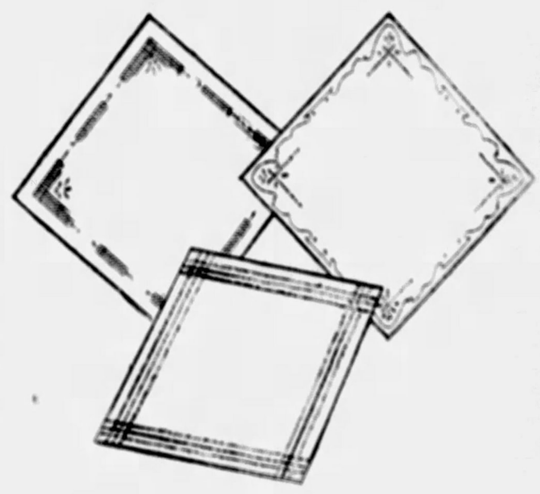
Select them by the half-dozens for all the young kindergartners on your list . . . they're such practical, and altogether charming gifts!

Dresses for play or for parties . . . plain, striped, flowered broadcloths—sheer dimities, batistes—party styles in gay organdies and lawns.

Beautifully made—smocked, fagoted and embroidered. Most of them with matching panties.

Sizes 2 to 6 Years

...Horne's, Third Floor...



Women's Fitted Cases

At a Special Price

$15.95

Those lovely fitted cases from Horne's higher-priced assortments—chic little duplex types with six-piece toilet sets and piano-hinge lids—smart week-end cases with 10-piece decorated sets! All fine, top-grain cowhide cases—of the quality you like to give to persons of special importance—at a price far under their regular figures.

In sizes just right for overnight hops, or larger ones for more protracted trips. Selection is good, but there's no guaranteeing how long they'll be here at this price!

How to Keep Well

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland

High Blood Pressure Is Indication of Short Life

Recently the death of a nationally known man was recorded. This man had been told he had high blood pressure. He never paid any attention to it, ignoring the advice of his physicians.

Dr. Copeland

The normal blood pressure for an adult ranges from 110 to 140. In a given person this may vary from time to time. Women as a rule have lower blood pressure than men.

Contrary to the common belief, redness of the face is not necessarily a sign of high blood pressure. There are other causes for this symptom. Indeed many persons with high blood pressure show no such sign and may even appear abnormally pale.

High blood pressure is a sign of abnormality in persons of middle age. Usually it results from some change in the blood vessels of the body or in the vital organs, particularly the kidneys and heart. It is essentially a condition of adult life. In youth it is usually temporary and is easily corrected.

High blood pressure frequently results from an habitually faulty diet. The regular diet may provide an excess of certain substances. When these are removed, the pressure comes down to normal.

Excessive activity and the strain of certain occupations help to bring about this condition. When the wrong living is corrected, the blood pressure is restored to normal.

It is important that the underlying constitutional disorder of heart, lung or kidney be investigated. If these fundamental causes are overlooked it is impossible to reduce the high blood pressure.

The greatest danger attached to persistent high blood pressure is brain hemorrhage. Cerebral hemorrhage, or as it is commonly known, "stroke," may be traced in most instances to high blood pressure. There are other causes for cerebral hemorrhage, but they are not as common as high blood pressure.

Cerebral hemorrhage occurs because of the breaking down of small blood vessels in the brain. Increased pressure has much to do with this.

There is one thing I want you to know. You must not depend on one of the numerous preparations advertised as "sure cures" for high blood pressure. There is no one medicine known to the medical world that will definitely cure high blood pressure.

However, it can only be controlled by careful regulation of the diet and strict attention to the rules of hygiene. An abundance of fresh air and sunlight, sufficient hours of sleep and relaxation will help a whole lot.

If you have high blood pressure do not think your happiness is ended. Millions of men and women have lived out the normal expectancy of life in spite of it. But you do need to take certain precautions and, having done so, may go about your daily affairs.

ADVENT SERIES AT TRINITY

The week of Advent noonday services at Trinity Cathedral, Sixth avenue, was scheduled to begin today with an address by the Rev. Donald K. Johnston, of St. Peter's Church, Uniontown, from 12:30 to 12:50. The Rev. W. F. Shero, of Christ Church, Greensburg, is to be tomorrow's speaker.

The Rev. John S. Taylor, of the Church of the Nativity, Crafton, will take the pulpit on Wednesday; the Rev. E. J. Van Etten, of Calvary Church, will speak Thursday; the Rev. H. Boyd Edwards, of the Church of the Ascension, Friday, and the Rev. Edward M. Wilson, canon of Trinity Cathedral, on Saturday.

The Rev. Ernest Risley, Trinity Cathedral canon, will complete the Advent services with addresses Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week.

Doak Blames Reds For 'Hunger March'

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—(INS.)—The recent "hunger march" on Washington was "of direct communist origin and of virtually wholly communist participation," Secretary of Labor Doak declared today. He said he had documentary evidence to this effect.

Uncle of O'Neil, Playwright, Dies

CINCINNATI, O., Dec. 14.—(AP.)—Paul Platz, 80, uncle of Eugene O'Neill, playwright, died at his home here last night. Platz was head of the foreign exchange department of the First National Bank for 42 years, and brother-in-law of James O'Neill, actor.

Coffee Used as Fuel To Wipe Out Surplus

RIO DE JANEIRO, Dec. 14.—(INS.)—Several factories and railways here today began to burn coffee for fuel instead of coal.

The procedure, the purpose of which is to consume an overstock of about 18,000,000 sacks, is to continue [illegible] weeks.

JINGLE WINNER CAUSES MIRTH

When you read the last line that won the $5 prize for Christmas Jingle No. 26 you may get a chuckle out of it and at the same time look back at the days when you went to school. There's a whole lot of truth in the line as Everett Halfhill, Rochester, Pa., wrote it, winning the Sun-Telegraph check for $5 which will probably come in handy for Christmas shopping. Here's how he finished the jingle:

An old-fashioned teacher named Ray
Cared well for her pupils each day.
She would do a kind deed
For a youngster in need.
But the paddle was handy, I'll say.

The five $1 prizes were awarded to Nevin Woodside, Jr., 830 Twelfth street, Oakmont; Mary A. Stewart, 108 Marie avenue, Avalon; Marie Hazlett, 1205 Freeport road, Tarentum; Mrs. L. A. Wyman, 102 Adams street, Vandergrift; P. J. Kidaisch, of 1225 Irwin avenue, Pittsburgh.

Try your hand on No. 33 appearing on this page today. The last line judged the best will win $5, and the next five $1 each.

All readers of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, with the exception of employes, are invited to enter the Christmas Jingle contest. You can send in as many last lines as you like. Equal awards will be paid to readers whose answers are tied in the judging. You do not have to buy a Sun-Telegraph to enter this contest. You may examine the files of this newspaper at the public library or at any one of the offices of the Sun-Telegraph where you may make a tracing of the Christmas Jingles blank if you wish.

Each Sun-Telegraph Christmas Jingle will be consecutively numbered.

Christmas Jingles No. 33

Pickpocket Suspects Given Five Days

Four alleged professional pickpockets were remanded to jail for five days by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg in Central police court today. He said if evidence were produced they had been operating in Pittsburgh he would impose a 90-day workhouse sentence and fine.

2,000-Pound Shark Attacks 3 in Boat

LONG BEACH, Cal., Dec. 14.—(INS.)—Cruising off Long Beach, a 20-foot shark weighing 2,000 pounds attacked a 40-foot boat containing Capt. Martin Yoncich and two fishermen who captured it without injuries after a furious two-hour battle.

2 Wives Questioned In Rum War Killing

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Dec. 14.—(INS.)—Attempting to shed light on the shotgun slaying of two suspected bootleggers, authorities today were questioning two women who said they were the wives of the victims.

The women were discovered in a ditched automobile some distance from the scene of the killing. The dead men, whose bodies were found by the side of a road, were Samuel Albrizza and Tom Saranita. Police said they were both from St. Louis and had probably met death as the result of a liquor war.

Women Anarchists Slay Indian Official

CALCUTTA, Dec. 14.—(INS.)—Two Indian women anarchists today shot and killed Charles G. B. Stevens, district magistrate and tax collector for the town of Camilla, in Eastern Bengal.

SALE OF SEALS FALLS SHORT

The sale of Christmas seals for the benefit of the Tuberculosis League is falling below that of other years, and unless users of the seals pay for them the League's activities will suffer curtailment, John F. Casey, chairman of the Christmas seal committee said today.

The first reports from the booth sale were being made today, the Jenkins Arcade booth, Mrs. S. S. Stingel, chairman, leading the Saturday sale, with the Union Arcade booth headed by Mrs. J. Leonard Levi, second.

Mr. Casey said:

"We cannot allow any curtailment of such an important part of the health work of the community. With an increase in tuberculosis cases before us Pittsburgh and Allegheny County must go over the top in this year's seal sale. Never before has the need been so urgent as it is now. The undernourished children of our community must be cared for at all odds this year.

"The success of tuberculosis prevention work lies in detecting the presence of tuberculosis infection in the very beginning. If we wait until prosperity returns to make our contributions to this health work it will be too late to save those who are in need of attention at present."

Murphy, Playwright, Weds Film Actress

TIA JUANA, Dec. 14. (AP)—Dudley Murphy, 34, playwright, of Hollywood, Cal., and New York, and Josephine Johnson, 18, film actress and daughter of Joseph Johnson, identified here as an executive of the Fox Film Corporation, were married Saturday by Judge Jesus Loyo in his federal courtroom.

Former N. Y. Woman Robbed in Naples

NAPLES, Italy, Dec. 14. (AP)—Mrs. Giovanna Carigliani, nee Mary Denman, of New York, reported to police today the theft of a pearl necklace, diamonds and other jewels which she valued at $50,000.

Mrs. Carigliani, whose husband is a wealthy Italian, said the thief entered through a window of their apartment. They have lived in Naples for a number of years.

Seven Girls, Three Boys Arrive During Year

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 14.

This has been a good year for the crib and bassinet business in Hollywood.

Girls lead among the film babies, seven having been born as compared to three boys.

First arrival of the year was Harold Lloyd, Jr., an incubator baby who weighed 2 pounds and 14 ounces at birth. He's a fine, husky youngster now, tipping the scales at 17 pounds and 4 ounces. The two other boys are Reginald Leigh Denny, Jr., born October 28, and Albert Louis Werker, November 6.

Esther Ralston

First of the girls was Patricia Fitzmaurice, daughter of Diana and George Fitzmaurice. She was born June 2. On June 17 Judith Fineman arrived to make proud parents out of Bernie Fineman and the former Margaret De Mille. Other girls were Sheila May Lanfield, born July 14, parents, Sidney Lanfield and the former Shirley Mason; Mary Esther Ralston, born August 10, parents, Esther Ralston and George Webb; Darillyn Zanuck, born August 28 and named after her father, Darryll Zanuck; Barbara Bebe Lyon, born September 9 to Bebe Daniels and Ben Lyon, and Judith Goetz, born October 7. Her parents are the former Edith Mayer and William Goetz.

LATEST GOSSIP

The picture of the Notre Dame-U. S. C. football game has turned out to be a sensation here. Loew's State has taken out the feature attraction of the week and has filled up the rest of the program with a short subject and a stage show. Still, the crowds have to wait to get in. Audiences are like a stadium crowd. They cheer and whistle at the exciting points of the game . . .

No attempt will be made to decide on Pola Negri's second vehicle until the studio gets the public reaction on her first. I don't mean there is any doubt about Pola making another film. The studio wants to know what kind of a story audiences prefer her in . . . Yesterday was Sally Eilers' birthday and Dave Butler will have one on the seventeenth . . . Bartlett Cormack has been signed by M-G-M. to do the dialogue on "Bugle Sounds" and to write one story . . . The Ann Harding company has finished shooting in Florida and the star flies to Havana with her husband, Harry Bannister. Director Tay Garnet, who also had planned to take a Cuban vacation, must return to cut the picture instead . . . Frances Dee's personal appearance tour will start in Boston . . . Esther Ralston will carry her baby on her road tour. It will be in the care of a trained nurse . . . Wedgewood Nowell, who has been a radio performer of late, is returning to the screen.

Pola Negri

IN THE NEWS

Making her fourth role at Warners in four months, Mary Doran has been signed to appear in "Poor Little Church Mouse." Marian Marsh and Warren Williams have the leads in this one. Production starts before the month is out. In the meantime, Joseph Jackson, who did the screen treatment, is leaving for New York to attend the opening of "Heads or Tails," a play on which he collaborated with Doris Anderson.

Childhood

Jackie Cooper, a living portrait of childhood everywhere, will come to the Stanley Thursday in another film, this time "Sooky."

'Tarzan, the Ape Man,' Picture Title

"Tarzan, the Ape Man" has been selected as final title for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's picturization of Edgar Rice Burroughs' melodramatic story about the young English lord who grew up in the African jungle. This picture is being directed by W. S. Van Dyke, who made "Trader Horn" and "The Pagan." Johnny Weissmuller, swimming champion, has the title role and the cast includes Maureen O'Sullivan, Neil Hamilton and C. Aubrey Smith.

Ramon Novarro to Act And Also Direct

Ramon Novarro, who has just completed a co-starring role opposite Greta Garbo in "Mata Hari," has signed a new long-term contract with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer under terms of which he will have an opportunity to direct pictures as well as to appear before the camera. Mr. Novarro is now on his way East for a brief vacation trip before taking up his duties under the new contract.

Youth Lives Wildly in Warner

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

"Are These Our Children," a drama of youth wandering from the straight and narrow, is on display in the Warner. It was written and directed by Wesley Ruggles, the man who made "Cimarron." It features an intelligent, strong portrayal by the youthful actor, Eric Linden.

The film is a preachment against youth on the loose. But keen directorial insight builds it into suspenseful, tragic drama. There is no happy fadeout clinch. It ends in the shadow of the Death House.

The hero is an ambitious youth, from modest and Christian environment. He wants to be a "somebody." He wants his pictures in the newspapers. But there is weakness in his makeup. A boyhood disappointment overcomes him. He starts running around with the wrong crowd. He frequents all-night dance halls and drinks synthetic booze. He ends up a murderer.

Beryl Mercer heads the adult acting contingent, giving her usual sympathetic portrayal of the motherly type. And a capable group of young players are on hand to help young Linden and her along.

Are these our children? We hope not. But they are worth going to see.

Next La Shearer Film Is 'Smiling Through'

Norma Shearer's next starring production will be "Smilin' Through," according to announcement from the coast. This film, based on Allan Langdon Martin's play of the same name, will be directed by Sidney Franklin. John Meehan, the playwright, is preparing the dialogue for the screen treatment, and selections for the supporting cast are to be announced shortly. Director Franklin recently finished the new production, "Private Lives," in which Miss Shearer and Robert Montgomery appear opposite each other.

'32 AUTO TAGS LEGAL TUESDAY

Automobile license plates for 1932 may be used after midnight tonight, officials of the Pittsburgh Motor Club announced today. Plates for 1931 may not be used after midnight, December 31.

Predicting that thousands of motorists will be without plates on New Year's Day due to a last minute rush, Benjamin G. Eynon, Commissioner of Motor Vehicles, said there will be no extension of the time limit.

Reports received by motor club officials show that a large percentage of automobile owners in the state have not yet received their 1932 plates, despite the fact that they have had an opportunity to order them for almost two months. In Allegheny County more than 200,000 vehicles were registered last year, with 1,600,000 registrations in the state.

Advertisers Host To N. Y. Store Head

How increased advertising appropriations improve business will be told by I. A. Hirschmann, director of publicity for Lord & Taylor, New York department store, before the Pittsburgh Advertising Club tomorrow in the William Penn Hotel. Hirschmann has served in similar capacity with other large merchandising organizations, and his talk will include a description of successful modern methods.

All In A Day

By Mark Hellinger

THE MAN IN TODAY'S STORY told me the yarn himself as I sat with him the other night in a Harlem cabaret. He said that he had been wanting to tell it to me for a long time. The man is a broker and very wealthy. About 33 years of age, he is quiet, courteous and very good looking. Merely for the sake of making the story a little clearer, I'll give him the name of Frank.

Frank never played Broadway until three years ago. Up to that time he never knew what the inside of a night club looked like—which was one of the best breaks he'd ever had in his life, even though he didn't know it.

He was in his office every morning at 9. He worked through the day. He was in bed at midnight. In other words, he was the typical New York business man.

But Frank fell in love. He didn't pick a girl in the Social Register. Nor did he go loco over his stenographer. He attended a party given by another wealthy broker one evening, and fell head over heels in love with a little chorine in one of the Broadways productions. Her name, let us say, was Irene.

Irene liked Frank, too. And why not? He was extremely attentive to her, placed his car at her disposal and showered gifts upon her. After going about together for some six months, it was understood that they were engaged.

Now, Irene—the same as so many other chorines—had a complex nature. She was perfectly willing to be in love with one man, but she enjoyed being with others. She loved to go on parties and outflirt the rest of the girls. She would wriggle out of an engagement with Frank to go to a cabaret with some man about whom she cared nothing. Nothing wrong, you understand. It was just the way she was built.

Frank was nobody's fool. He knew nothing about show business, it's true. But he noticed little things that Irene did—and they hurt him. Men would phone her apartment while he was there. Once, when Irene pleaded a headache and said she wanted to be home early, he had taken her to her hotel.

Arriving there, the clerk had failed to see Frank and called out:

"O, Miss P—, there's a message here for you. Mr. B— called and said he'd be a few minutes late."

Frank had fought with Irene over that. Irene had told him not to be silly, and said that the clerk had mistaken her for somebody else. Irene thought she had got away with it. Irene hadn't.

I wonder if you can understand the girl I'm trying to portray? You must realize that she loved this man almost as much as he loved her. Yet she was young and she thought that these other men constituted adventure.

Frank noticed everything. His friends, too, kept putting in the rap.

"Why fall in love with a girl like that?" they kept saying. "Tom and I saw her out the other night with one of the biggest bums on Broadway. Why don't you give her up? You know she's double-crossing you. Why not quit now?"

And Frank would smile.

"No, boys," he would respond. "She doesn't mean any harm by what she's doing. Everything will turn out okay. Just wait and see."

But he finally talked to her. He talked to her calmly and quietly.

"Honey," he said, "you know that I love you, and that I don't know anything about Broadway. But I do know that you're not playing quite fairly with me.

"I just want to tell you one thing. If I ever have cause to suspect you again, we're through. I'll drop out of your life like a bullet. Watch your step, dear."

* * *

A week or so after his little talk with Irene, Frank and she were having dinner together at a swanky restaurant. Across the way sat another Wall street man whom Frank detested. This other chap was strictly a dealer in phony securities and had twice beaten jail only by the scantiest of margins.

This man was flirting with Irene. Frank sensed it immediately. When a man is deeply in love, he watches his girl's eyes continually while in public. With a girl like Irene, it was necessary for Frank to watch her even when they were alone.

Out of the corner of his eye, Frank saw Irene smile and nod slightly to the man at the other table. He was furious, but he said nothing. He was waiting to see how the game would be played.

The Wall street racketeer called for his check and paid it with many a flourish. He began to walk from the room and "accidentally" stumbled at Frank's chair. He apologized and seemed to be amazed at seeing Frank.

"Why, Frank, old man," he cried happily. "Had no idea you were here. Certainly glad to see you again. By the way, I wanted to see you for a moment anyhow. Do you mind if I sit down?"

What was Frank to do? He was compelled to introduce Irene, which was all the racketeer wanted in the first place. As soon as he had the girl's name, the phony excused himself and disappeared.

About 20 minutes later, a phone call came for Irene. Frank suspected something immediately. But it was not until she returned that he discovered what a brazen flirtation she had attempted to carry on under his very nose.

"O, honey," she asserted excitedly. "I have the most divine news. That was Helen F——, a girl friend of mine. We're both invited to a big party over on Fifth avenue. And whose house do you think it is? The man you just introduced me to. Isn't that strange?"

Frank arose. He nodded shortly.

"It's very strange," he agreed. "Let's go."

They entered his car and were driven to the Fifth avenue address. Irene noticed how abrupt he was. But she thought nothing of it. Why should she?

They reached the house.

"You get out first, Irene," said Frank.

* * *

Frank leaned back and sighed.

"That was exactly two and a half years ago," he told me.

I looked at him.

"But you've been playing Broadway pretty heavily since then," I said. "Do you mean to say you never saw her again after that?"

He smiled. A trifle sadly.

"I saw her several times," he said. "But I never spoke to her in any of the clubs. I am frank to say that I ran away from her."

"Then," I persisted, "you never spoke to her again since that night?"

Silence for a moment.

"Wasn't going to tell you this," he finally said, "but it can't make much difference. Yes, I've spoken to her once. She was in my office about three weeks ago. She married some hoofer. And is separated from him. She's everybody's girl now. And I think she's on the dope, too."

"That's too bad," I returned. "But you were mighty lucky to be rid of her. I'm surprised you even permitted her to come into your office."

"You'll be more surprised," he muttered, "to learn that I gave her $1,000 in cash before she left my office."

"Are you crazy?" I inquired politely. "That girl will now blackmail you as long as you live."

The orchestra swept into the St. Louis Blues. He listened to the wild music for a moment and then leaned closer to me.

"Mark," he murmured, "I don't care. She can have whatever she wants any time she wants. Because I know now that I should have married her three years ago.

"And there's another reason, Mark. It's because I still love her with all my heart."

2 TAXI DRIVERS HIT BY BRICKS

Two taxi drivers were injured, one seriously, early today by bricks thrown through the windows of their cabs.

Both of the attacks, believed renewals of the feud between the cab company and union drivers, who have refused to return to work, occurred on the North Side.

Fred Hisler, 31, of 21 Bostock street, was taken to Allegheny General Hospital shortly before 1 a. m. He told police a brick had been hurled through the windshield of his cab at Manchester boulevard and Galveston avenue.

From there, with the driver unconscious, the cab ran two blocks up Galveston, police said, part of the time on the sidewalk, until it struck a traffic "blinker" at Galveston and Ridge avenues.

The driver of the other cab was James Stoner, of 212 West North avenue. He was cut by flying glass and bruised as a brick hurtled through the window of his cab as he drove in a lower North Side street a short time after Hisler was attacked. He, too, was taken to Allegheny General Hospital.

Woman Shot Aboard Ship Called Suicide

SOUTHAMPTON, England, Dec. 14.—(AP.)—Miss Phoebe Sorel, formerly of Douglaston, L. I., who died recently from pistol wounds sustained on the liner Asturias, was described as a suicide at a coroner's inquest today.

MUSIC

Pittsburgh Symphony Society And Milton Lomask

SYRIA MOSQUE

PROGRAM

Overture, "Marriage of Figaro" ..... Mozart
Rumanian Rhapsody, No. 2 ..... Enesco
Symphony No. 8 ..... Beethoven
Concerto for Violin, A Minor ..... Glazounoff
Marche Slav ..... Tschaikowsky

The Pittsburgh Symphony Society gave its second concert in Syria Mosque last night with marked increase in attendance and enthusiasm. Eugene Goossens conducted. In the orchestra there were flashes of real excellence and promise.

Mr. Lissfelt

The program was one of the best we have had; well-timed, well-chosen, and delivered smartly. And that in spite of the omission of any real novelty. The nice distinction in violin tone from the Mozart overture to the Enesco work again showed the possibilities of our players; the play of woodwinds in the rhapsody was another outstanding feature of their technical improvement. In brief these two compositions again set a standard for the orchestra.

The Beethoven Symphony had its ups and downs. Goossens reading is traditional with one exception, the minuet, and that he played more originally than other directors; it was as if Beethoven himself, in all his social awkwardness, had danced this court dance in sheer mockery of the aristocracy he so detested.

Milton Lomask, concertmaster of the orchestra, appeared as soloist, playing the Glazounoff Concerto, a barren work for the virtuoso, but pleasantly melodious. Lomask's tone is not large but exceedingly pure and delicate. His phrasing is graceful; he is musical, and has a modest presence which adds to his performance. He responded to hearty applause with the last movement of the Mendelssohn Concerto.

Bay Trees Burned On Mackay Estate

ROSLYN, N. Y., Dec. 14.—(AP.)—A large number of bay trees were destroyed and thousands of dollars worth of rare orchids were endangered in a fire which destroyed a large two-story house Saturday night on the estate of Clarence H. Mackay, head of the Postal Telegraph Company.

Auto Racer Killed In Crash, Man Held

FRESNO, Cal., Dec. 14.—(AP.)—R. Frasher, 28, of San Jose, Cal., was held on a charge of manslaughter for the death of Francis Quinn, also 28, Los Angeles racing driver, in a head-on motor car collision north of Fresno last night.

GARAGE FUMES KILL MAN

Funeral services for James Lawrence Campbell, monoxide gas victim, will be held tomorrow morning at his home, 568 Edgerton place.

Campbell was found dead in his garage in the rear of his home yesterday morning by a neighbor, E. P. Goetz, of 6953 Edgerton place, after Mrs. Campbell had called the Goetz home thinking her husband was there.

Campbell, for many years an accountant with Smith Brothers Company, Inc., and the Pittsburgh Legal Journal, and more recently engaged in private accounting, leaves his widow, Mrs. Mabel Blair Campbell, and two daughters, Dorothy and Jane Campbell.

Trust Suit Accuses Movie Producers

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 14.—(AP.)—An injunction suit filed in Federal Court today charged motion picture producers with combining in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law.

The suit filed for the Cleveland Motion Picture Exhibitors Association, named as the defendants the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, Inc., of which Will H. Hays is head, and the Cleveland Film Board of Trade.

DON'T spend a winter of WORRY

Radiator GLYCERINE is 100% there all winter

When you fill your radiator with a "fade-away" anti-freeze you never feel secure. Instead of peace-of-mind, you're buying worry and bother and risk of freeze-ups. Is there any logic or economy in that?

This year fill with genuine G. P. A. Radiator Glycerine. Early! G. P. A. will not evaporate. One filling gives complete protection all winter long! And because your first expense is your last expense, G.P.A. is really more economical than cheaper, "fade-away" anti-freezes.

Does not injure your cooling system in any way. Doesn't hurt Duco, either, or give off unpleasant fumes! Produced only by members of Glycerine Producers' Association.

We Now Present

By Darrell V. Martin
Radio Editor

MILTON LOMASK, concertmaster of the Pittsburgh Symphony received three encores last night in Syria Mosque on the same stage with Eugene Goossens, famous conductor. Lomask has been playing over Pittsburgh radio stations for more than a year and we have yet to hear his name mentioned more than once. We make a mistake in this city by not publicizing our best talent. . . . Lomask gave a masterly interpretation of a Glazounoff Concerto and we yearn to hear him on the air in a few old favorites, say "Humoresque," "Liebesfreud," "Hungarian No. 2," "Liebestraum" or any of those pieces that have a universal appeal. . . . And we haven't given up hope that some Pittsburgh sponsor will put this Symphony Society on the air.

Question a Day:

Some days ago you mentioned that Pennsylvania had more sets than all the New England states put together. But how does Pennsylvania compare with other states in its radio zone?—Herbert W. Bridgeville.

Answer—We hardly get the point of your question but just to keep the records straight, Pennsylvania has 38.7 per cent of all sets in the second radio zone. The remainder 61.3 per cent is divided among five states—Ohio, Michigan, Kentucky, Virginia and West Virginia.

When the March of Time re-enacted the opening of Congress, the part of William Tyler Page, clerk of the House of Representatives, was taken by his friend Julian Noa. The latter, a well-known actor, recently visited Washington, and at the time Page personally conducted him around the Capitol. Later Noa sat in the gallery reserved for visitors and watched Page perform in his office, remembering the procedure well enough to give a perfect representation during the radio news-reel.

Andre Kostelanetz, CBS orchestra director, reminisces about the Petrograd Grand Opera Company which he joined as assistant conductor and chorus master at the age of 17, and which he was with for several years, finally becoming its director. Among its interesting features, he reveals, was a huge kitchen in the opera house where the 800 employes, including the musicians, ate together after rehearsing all day long. It broke up in March of 1922 because of the impossibility of getting fuel to heat the huge opera house during that post-war period in Russia, leaving the next week to tour Europe as accompanist to Mischa Mischakoff, violinist and at present concert master of the Chicago Opera Company.

Singin' Sam is about to return to one of his old loves, as he has been booked for a number of vaudeville appearances around New York, which, however, will not interfere with his radio activities. With this prospect he is at present devoting much of his time to getting back into the swing of "blackface" quickly.

Mark Warnow, director of the Sylvanians, recalls his most embarrassing moment, which happened at a performance of "Cavaleria Rusticana." Mark always had been impressed by the great maestri who conducted without music, having memorized the score. Wanting to make an impression, he learned the overture by heart and went through it in great style. When the curtain went up, signalling the beginning of the opera proper, he opened the music book with an elaborate gesture. To his amazement the wrong music confronted him. His memory did not serve him and he went through the form of leading the orchestra through the entire first act, although he was in reality following the musicians. He has never attempted a "memory song" since then.

Man Surrenders as Driver of Auto Killing Newsboy

DRIVE FAILURE FEAR DELAYS EMERGENCY JOB PLAN

MAN GIVES UP AS DRIVER OF DEATH CAR

Confesses Killing of Victim Leaving Trolley; Man Hurt Fatally Near McKeesport

Walking calmly into the East End Police Station today, David Bainard, 23, Negro, of 7535 Pierce street, surrendered, police said, as the hit-and-run motorist who killed Walter Janiszewski, 13 year-old newsboy, as he stepped from a street car at Center avenue and Melwood street last night.

Bainard, Acting Sergt. Daniel Bradley said, told officers he did not stop after the accident because he was "too scared."

Witnesses said the automobile which killed the boy sped down Center avenue, nearly striking two girls at Craig street, and hit the victim just as he stepped from the street car.

No one obtained the license number.

While walking in O'Neil boulevard, Mike Mateo, 31, of 709 East street, McKeesport, was fatally injured when he was struck by an automobile driven by Theodore Knuteson, 18, of 604 Bayne street, Versailles.

Hit by a hit-run driver, Walter Stockhart, 25, of 2312 Salisbury street, was in South Side Hospital early today suffering from a possible fracture of the skull.

Ernest Mancinni, 11, was injured, seriously, yesterday when an automobile driven by his father, Anthony Mancinni, of 840 Island avenue, McKees Rocks, collided with a truck driven by Clarence Braun, of Homeville, at Carson street and Becks Run road. The drivers were arrested, police said.

Mexican Rebel Chief Divorced by Beauty

EL PASO, Tex., Dec. 14.—(AP.)—Mrs. Concepcion Goeldner de Escobar, of El Pasa, verified reports that she had obtained an annulment of her marriage to Gen. Jose Gonzalo Escobar, leader of the ill-fated Mexican revolution in 1929 while they were in Montreal, Canada, last March.

Previously, both she and the general, who still is in Montreal denied the reports. Mrs. Escobar, who won a beauty contest here several years ago, alleged Escobar had another wife.

Two Boy Hunters Slain, Youth Held

HAZELTON, Pa., Dec. 14.—(AP.)—Two youths are dead and a third is in jail on a murder charge today as the aftermath of an exchange of gunfire in the Evergreen Forest during a hunting trip Saturday. Parents of Jacob Hudak, 16, the youth held, were attempting to obtain his release by habeas corpus proceedings. His brother, Peter, 18, and Joseph Bubal, 17, died yesterday of their wounds.

Jacob Hudak told police Bubal shot his brother and that he then shot Bubal himself, after a petty quarrel.

Floods Threaten 3 Counties in Ohio

PORTSMOUTH, O., Dec. 14.—(AP.)—Floods threatened sections of Pike, Scioto and Adams Counties today as streams, swollen by two days of rain, broke their banks.

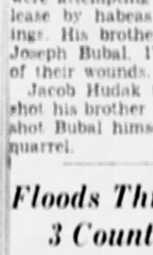
Ten inches of water poured over the Scioto trail, main highway from Columbus to Portsmouth, in some sections, and motorists were forced to abandon their machines. Reports from Manchester told of calls for help for stranded motorists, who, trapped by floods, were forced to spend the night in their cars.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

MUKDEN, Japan, Dec. 14.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

I got this war stopped if the League of Nations don't start it again. I am leaving for Harbin in North Manchuria. That is supposed to be the livest town in all the Far East. It's in Chinese territory, a Soviet railroad headquarters, also refuge of the old Czar Russians. And, say, do you know this whole country of Siberia looks just like Oklahoma and the farmers are just as bad off.



Will Rogers

Yours, WILL.

GROUND BROKEN FOR MT. MERCY BUILDING

Chaplain Leads Procession Of Students and Faculty; Exercises End Centenary

Ground was broken today at Mt. Mercy College, Oakland, for the new activities building, with the students and Sisters of the Order of Mercy participating. The exercises brought an end to the celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of the Order of Mercy in America, which began Thursday.

The ground breaking was to be a part of the anniversary program Thursday but was postponed until today because of inclement weather. The new building will be a three story brick structure and will house a gymnasium, swimming pool, auditorium and recreation rooms.

The Rev. Matthew Yanosek, chaplain, led the procession of students and members of the faculty from the Administration Building to the campus where the ground breaking exercises took place. Father Yanosek and Sister Irenaues, Mother Superior at Mt. Mercy, turned the first soil and were followed by representatives of the three classes. Mt. Mercy is but three years old and does not have a senior class.

'Two Gun's' Double Given 20-40 Years

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(INS.)—Patrick O'Brien, "Two-Gun Crowley's double," was sentenced today to serve from 20 to 40 years in Sing Sing following his second conviction of a hold-up for which the condemned Crowley sought to take the blame. The sentence was the same as that originally imposed on O'Brien.

BUDGET SLASH OPPOSED BY MRS. RAUH

Member of Kline Cabinet Fights for Restoral of Items Council Cut Out

Ignoring Council's ultimatum that Mayor Kline's cabinet co-operate in slashing the 1932 budget, Mrs. Enoch Rauh, director of the Department of Welfare, today, with representatives of charitable organizations, requested reinstatement of two appropriations stricken out.

These were the Bureau for the Handicapped and the Mental Health Clinic, which Council, sitting as the budget committee, had eliminated last week on the ground that they were "luxuries."

Mrs. Rauh and Dr. E. P. Mayer in charge of the clinic, said much had been done for poor people by preventive and corrective measures, and that some thereby had been saved from going to Mayview.

Representatives of the Catholic Charities and the American Prison Association urged restoration of the two items in the budget.

Councilman W. Y. English, chairman of the budget committee, declared:

"This Council is being blamed for everything. It wouldn't surprise me if we were blamed for the trouble in Manchuria. It appears to be the open season on us. We are to be slaughtered two years in advance, according to the newspapers. The newspapers are not giving us a square deal, but we won't quarrel about that."

Councilman John S. Herron asked Mrs. Rauh if any members of Council had availed themselves of the mental health clinic. She replied in the negative.

No action was taken on her request.

WELFARE AIDES MAKING FINAL REPORTS

Leaders Anticipate Defeat; Collapse of Huge Work Program for Needy Looms

A list of Welfare Fund contributors appears on Page 6.

With the final meeting and close of the campaign of the Welfare Fund and Allegheny County Emergency Association scheduled today in William Penn Hotel, leaders declared the drive a failure unless some unanticipated break comes at the last minute. It was expected that today's reports would swell the fund to $5,500,000, including the conditional gift of $750,000 made more than a week ago by 20 individuals and corporations.

Leaders announced today that two divisions, the special gifts committee and the corporations committee, will continue their resoliciation for increases, and all workers will complete solicitation of all prospects for whom they have cards.

Hope was expressed that the work of these groups may put the campaign close to the goal of nearly $6,000,000, but complete returns will not be in before next week.

The Emergency Association, officials said, is holding back its program pending further developments. With 5,000 men employed, 5,000 families receiving a weekly relief appropriation and 10,000 men and women registered for jobs which are not available, officials said the only possibility of carrying out the program lies in an appeal for public funds.

Word was received Saturday by the Fund that employes of the Duquesne National Bank have pledged an additional day's pay, making a total increase of $330.80 over the previous amount, and payable May 15.

New subscriptions and increases received on the blank subscription form printed in the daily papers last week included: John M. Hooper, 448 Wylie avenue, Clairton, $10; W. A. Kimmel, 7237 Penn avenue, $10; Dorothy E. Glassburn, 929 Wellesley road, $5 increase; Mrs. H. B. Heaslet, 920 Western avenue, $5 increase.

DOPE SLEUTH, $13,000 GONE

BUFFALO, N. Y., Dec. 14.—(INS.)—Mysterious disappearance of an undercover United States narcotic agent with $13,000 entrusted to him by the government to obtain dope as evidence, was revealed here today when police were asked to aid in the search for him.

Anthony Gilliotti, of Utica, a special investigator for the Federal Norcotic Bureau, had been given $13,000 three weeks ago to make a buy of drugs from a group operating a huge distribution system throughout Central New York.

Several days later Gilliotti returned with a large amount of what he said was cocaine.

SAFE ROBBERS MISS BIG HAUL

Highly expert safecrackers, according to Chief of Police John J. Whalen, broke into the safe of the Sears, Roebuck & Co. store, McKeesport, late Saturday night.

Whalen said the men apparently were scared away before they could complete their job, as only $129 was taken from the top section of the safe while a much larger amount in another compartment was untouched.

Whalen believes the gang is the one which Detective Edward O'Rourke, of the Pittsburgh bureau, last week heard was headed for Western Pennsylvania.

FINDS NO PERIL IN COMMUNISM

Communism is not a serious threat to the United States because Communism needs a sick social order on which to thrive, Dr. Ethan T. Colton, executive secretary to the foreign committee of the Young Men's Christian Association, said here today.

In Pittsburgh to speak at the Hungry Club luncheon in the Fort Pitt Hotel, and at a dinner of the Y. M. C. A., Dr. Colton declared that Communism does not seem to find fertile soil among the Anglo-Saxon people.

Dr. Colton, who is the author of "The X Y Z of Communism" said his work has taken him into Russia many times since the World War.

Russia's political strength is greater since the founding of the Soviet regime, he said, and under the five-year plan Russia is making great economic and industrial strides.

Huge Relief Task Handled With Aid Of Schools

More than 2,000 needy children of Pittsburgh have received new shoes through the Salvation Army during the last three months, officials announce. This forms one of the largest relief efforts ever made by the Army.

Shoes of varying sizes, styles and colors are distributed under direction of William Abram, bandmaster of No. 1 Corps. The shoes, purchased by the Army at factory prices, have been distributed free to the children on recommendation of public school teachers. Each case is investigated.

Further orders have been placed, Army officials said.

Almost the entire distribution has been made to children under 12 years, who otherwise would not be able to attend school.

TWO RICH SHORE CLUBS RAIDED

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Dec. 14.—(AP.)—The Clicquot Club, one of Atlantic City's most richly furnished resorts, and the Silver Slipper, widely-known night club, were raided by federal dry agents today.

The Clicquot Club, located in a 20-room mansion, was stripped of furnishings valued at $20,000. Four vans carted away Japanese and Chinese furnishings. Agents poured several thousand dollars worth of alleged whiskies and champagnes down a drain.

Under a recent court ruling, they also seized books, showing a $300-a-day business for September and membership lists with about 2,000 names, including visitors from New York and Philadelphia.

The agents said they found cancelled checks made payable to Joseph Rosenbaum, a politician. Five employes were arrested.

Limitations Taken From Ban on Aliens

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—(INS.)—The Supreme Court today ruled that aliens who entered the country illegally can be deported at any time under a 1924 law which removed a previous statute of limitations prohibiting deportation of aliens who had been in the country five years.

Six Women Jailed, Man Fined in Raid

William Bnoss, night clerk in the Crown Hotel, Sixth and Wylie avenues, was fined $100 yesterday by Magistrate Thomas D. Jones, and six women were given 90-day workhouse sentences on vagrancy charges. A visitor was discharged.

Man, Dog Near End Of 1,500-Mile Hike Here

"Tiny," 10-month-old fox terrier, and Ernest Corn, 24, of West Sunbury, Pa., began the last lap of their 1,500-mile journey today after having been housed during the night in North Side Police Station.

Fifteen months ago Corn left his home near Butler to seek work in the southwestern oil fields. He found the dog in the southwest, and when he journeyed into Wyoming, he took "Tiny" with him.

Several weeks ago Corn decided to return home for the holidays, and accompanied by "Tiny" began to hitch-hike across country.

Oratory Won't Spoil Holiday Liquor Trade

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

That entitles them to a vote of thanks for not interfering with the holiday trade.

Most eminent authorities inform us that voting will not change the betting. That eighteenth vulcanizing job on the constitution may be unpopular. But it's there to stay like a mummy in a museum.

We think the whole situation is summed up by the red-nosed philosopher who said:

"The Eighteenth Amendment got me out of the corner saloons.

ADMITS THEFT FROM PULPIT

HIGH POINT, N. C., Dec. 14 (AP).—The Rev. C. D. Barnette, former treasurer and assistant pastor of the Green Street Baptist Church here at the church service yesterday confessed to misappropriation of $4,000 of church funds.

The minister was then given the church by the congregation. He resigned the more than 1,000 members of the present week a shortage of $4,000, falcation and years long series.

His ordination papers were turned over to the church by Barnette before the congregation voted to accept his resignation. He refused however to accept them until all the shortage has been repaid.

Barnette resigned in October. Afterward a shortage of $120 was found in the church's funds and an investigation disclosed the additional shortage. He gave two notes to cover the shortage.

Maj. Hay Celebrates 87th Birthday

Children and friends of Maj. Albert Bub, Hay assistant district attorney and oldest member of the Allegheny County bar, attended a celebration in honor of his eighty-seventh birthday at his home 938 Beechwood avenue, North Side, yesterday. Hay began law practice 65 years ago, shortly after returning from the Civil War.

Woman Unconscious From Fall in Street

Mrs. Elizabeth Mann, of Ley street, was found unconscious from a fractured skull early today on Mt. Troy road. An unidentified motorist found the woman and removed her to the Allegheny General Hospital. County Detective Harry Barker attributed the woman's injuries to a fall.

Parting of Ways Home Seeks Funds

The Parting of the Ways Home today was issuing its annual appeal to philanthropic Pittsburghers. The Parting of the Ways Home which gives men just released from prison an opportunity to help themselves, receives no financial aid from the city, county or state, and is entirely dependent upon public subscriptions. During the past 18 years 15,121 men have been aided.

FENCE CHECKS TAXI'S PLUNGE

A taxicab parked in front of 116 Marsonia street, Fineview, early today while the driver went to summon his fare. Miss Olive Legler, slipped its brakes and started down the steep hill to Betts street, where Marsonia ends.

Crossing Betts street, the cab plunged over the street car tracks and into a heavy iron fence which prevented it from going over a steeper hill and through the backyards of a dozen homes fronting on Rising Main street.

27-Mile Parachute Drift Believed World Record

CHANUTE FIELD, Rantoul, Ill., Dec. 14.—(AP).—United States Army Air Corps officers here claimed a possible world's record for Lieut. Walter K. Burgess after he had drifted 27 miles, dangling from a parachute.

Lieut. Burgess jumped from an Army plane piloted by Lieut. Russell M. Scott at an altitude of 23,000 feet. He was in the air 33 minutes before he landed on state highway No. 49 near Paxton, Ill., at a point 27 miles by land from the spot over which he had jumped.

Lieut. Burgess carried a barograph by which the altitude was checked, and an oxygen tank.

Broker to Address Real Estate Board

Leo G. Griffith, Pittsburgh manager for Cassatt & Co., investment brokers, will address members of the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board tomorrow at the board's weekly luncheon meeting in the William Penn Hotel.

William E. Best, Pittsburgh attorney and president of the United States Building and Loan League, was scheduled to speak at tomorrow's luncheon, but will be unable to attend.

2 GO ON TRIAL FOR MURDER

Michael Drabinsin, Sr., 63, of Universal, went on trial before Judge Thomas M. Marshall today charged with the murder of his son, Michael, Jr., 20, in their home last June 10. Judge Marshall only recently was appointed to the bench and this is his first murder case.

James W. Craig, 48, was placed on trial before Judge Harry H. Rowand in connection with the death of Stephen Landser, 51, of 1016 Urilla street last July 5.

Landser died July 5 from a fractured skull, said to have been received during a fight in Steuben street.

Zamora Offers $4 To New Born Babies

MADRID, Dec. 14.—(AP).—President Alcala Zamora has offered to give 50 pesetas (about $4) to each child born in Spain on his inauguration day last Friday. One birth in Madrid and one in Seville had been reported to him today.

INFANT, TRUCK UNCLAIMED

The truck, owned, police say, by Mario Riccotti, of 138 Middle street, Wilmerding, in which a 2-months-old baby girl was found Saturday night, is still unclaimed in a police garage today.

Roxie Long's son, Richard, 12, of 1704 Cliff street, en route home, found the baby attired in all the things the well-dressed baby should wear, crying in the truck.

Center avenue police bundled the babe off to Rosella Foundling Asylum where it was cared for and given a name. Until it is claimed it will be known as Christina Clifton, a name suggesting the time and place it was found.

Medicinal Whisky Stocks Replenished

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—(AP.)—Distillation of medicinal whisky to replenish the country's stocks, rapidly decreasing since adoption of prohibition, was resumed during the last year, and 2,435,631 gallons were manufactured at seven distilleries.

Dr. James M. Doran, industrial alcohol commissioner, in his annual report today said the medicinal whisky had been increased by that amount during the year while 53,258 gallons of brandy were reported for medicinal and general non-beverage purposes, and 1,070,719 gallons for denaturation and exportation.

ALKA-SELTZER

The Pain Relieving Alkalizing Effervescent Tablet Will Help Keep You on Your Job!

YOU have probably suffered, lost time and had short pay envelopes the past year because of sickness. Nine out of ten people have.

How often have you lost a day's pay because Colds, Headaches, Stomach disorders or some other everyday illness kept you off your job?

The lost wages and expense of preventable illness would take care of every unemployed man and woman in United States.

When you are sick, you cannot keep on working and suffering—giving only a half a day's work for a full day's pay. That's one sure way to lose your job.

Get Well and Keep Well. Headaches, Colds, Gas on the Stomach, Sour Stomach, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Muscular Pains, Sciatica, Fatigue or that "Morning After" Feeling, are all caused or made worse by

Too Much Acid

When you over-eat—or when you eat too many acid-producing foods such as bread, meat, eggs and pastry, and too few of the alkaline-producing foods such as fruits and vegetables—then your system becomes too acid—your resistance goes down and you become an easy victim to everyday aches and pains.

That's the time to take ALKA-SELTZER. A Tablet of ALKA-SELTZER in a glass of water makes a harmless, effervescent drink that gives you double relief from your troubles.

1—It relieves the pain and discomfort promptly and safely.
2—It corrects the excess acid condition in the body and removes the cause of sickness due to too much acid.

Alka-Seltzer is new—and different. It is a scientific product—a corrective alkaline drink that first relieves the pain of everyday ailments and then corrects the excess acid that causes the trouble.

COLDS When you have a cold, it is a sure sign you are suffering from excess acidity. Your body always contains too much acid when you have a Cold. Alka-Seltzer relieves the stuffed-up, heavy feeling almost immediately. A few tablets correct the excess acid condition and clear up the Cold in a few hours.

Headache. Alka-Seltzer will relieve the pain and get rid of the excess acid that causes headaches.

Gas on Stomach, Heartburn, Sour Stomach. You never enjoyed such prompt, pleasant, relief as one or two Alka-Seltzer Tablets in a glass of water will give you.

Neuralgia, Rheumatic, Sciatic and Muscular Pains. Just try Alka-Seltzer. You will be glad you have found such a pleasant, easy way to relieve these pains.

"That Tired Feeling." When you feel tired, it is because part of the sugar in your body has turned to acid. Correct the excess acid by taking one or two Alka-Seltzer tablets. You will feel rested and refreshed in a few minutes.

That "Morning After" Feeling. Too Much Eating and Drinking always cause an over-acid condition. Headache, an upset stomach and a general "Morning After" feeling are pretty sure to follow. Clear up your head and settle your stomach with ALKA-SELTZER.

Alka-Seltzer makes a clear, sparkling harmless drink that is as pleasant to the taste as mineral spring water. Many people have told us that Alka-Seltzer is the best thing that they have ever used.

Why don't you try it and see for yourself?

Try ALKA-SELTZER on This Special Offer

EXPERTS DOUBT TRI-SECTING OF ANGLE

Pitt, Temple Mathematicians, Boxing Promoter Question Father Callahan's Solution

Pitt mathematicians, a Temple University professor and a boxing promoter today chorused polite criticism of the Very Rev. J. J. Callahan's trisected angle—a problem as old as geometry.

They all seemed to agree that the president of Duquesne University, announcement of whose solution created national interest a few months ago, had built up an angle of three equal parts, but had not trisected one. Father Callahan's claim is that he had trisected an angle by plane geometry.

SEE THREE ANGLES

Said Pitt mathematicians:

"Dr. Callahan took an angle and built three angles on it. This is not unknown and there are other ways of doing it. If Dr. Callahan will show us how to reverse his process and apply it to trisecting a given angle rather than building up an angle three times the given one, we shall be interested to see the construction and the demonstration."

In Philadelphia, Carlton W. Burt, Temple mathematician, told the Associated Press:

"Dr. Callahan has trisected an angle of his own construction, an angle that is built up in the proof."

SHOWMAN CHIMES IN

"All the university president has done is build up three angles of equal size through parallelograms."

To the man in the street, Father Callahan's method was a technical array of A's, B's, C's, D's, E's and F's.

RICHES TRAVEL STREETS IN BANK SHIFT

Downtown Bristles With Guns; Guard $40,000,000 Federal Reserve Funds

Pittsburgh's costliest parade moved through the rain-drenched deserted downtown section yesterday, heralding the opening today of the new $1,500,000 Federal Reserve Bank Building in William Penn and Ogle ways.

There were no bands or ballyhoo; the whole thing was shrouded in secrecy, because Uncle Sam was moving more than $40,000,000 in gold, silver, currency and securities from the old Federal Reserve Bank at Ninth street and Liberty avenue to the new building.

From dawn to dusk, a big black "securities wagon," escorted by motorcycle patrolmen and a guard that bristled with machine guns, moved between the two buildings, carrying what is reported to be the largest amount of actual gold and silver ever transported through Pittsburgh streets in a single day.

There will be no formal opening ceremony at the new bank building, it was announced by M. J. Fleming, deputy governor of the Cleveland Federal Reserve Bank.

'LIFER' HANGS SELF IN CELL

A 23-year-old "lifer" at Western Penitentiary, an inmate only 13 days today had kept his promise that he would not spend Christmas in prison. John Phoman of South Fork, convicted of murder in Cambria County, entered the penitentiary December 1. Guards found him dead yesterday morning in his cell, his body suspended from the bars, his belt as a noose around his neck.

This was the answer to his promise to a small group of friends who little realized his meaning.

Casket Salesmen Hold Conference

Salesmen of the tri-state district were attending a sales conference today of the Casket Manufacturers' Association of America in the William Penn Hotel. The session was being directed by John M. Byrne, of Cincinnati, national secretary. Forty-five salesmen were in attendance. A luncheon closed the meeting, one of a series being held throughout the country.

Ex-Train Master's Aide Dies in Altoona

ALTOONA, Pa., Dec. 14.—(INS.)—David Steele, 85, retired assistant freight train master of the Pittsburgh division of the Pennsylvania Railroad, was dead at his home here today. He was connected with the railroad for 49 years, retiring in 1916.

OBITUARY

Bro. Hieronymus Schneider.

Brother Hieronymus Schneider, C. S. Sp., 79, who came to the United States after serving in the Prussian Army and joined the religious order of the Holy Ghost as a lay brother, died yesterday while attending mass in the chapel at Duquesne University. Death was caused by a hemorrhage of the brain. He was born in Aston, Marienstadt, in the Diocese of Nassau, Prussia, November 21, 1852, and entered religious life in July, 1885, in Pittsburgh at what was then Holy Ghost College. Two years later he made his profession and was stationed at St. Mary's Church, Sharpsburg. He was later located in Detroit, Morrilton, Ark., and Cornwells Heights, near Philadelphia. At Duquesne University he had charge of the linen room, serving the resident students and faculty. Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 10 a. m. in the university chapel. Interment will be in St. Mary's Church, Sharpsburg.

Maher Funeral.

Funeral services for Joseph Maher, of 35 McMunn avenue, Crafton, will be held Wednesday morning in St. Philip's Catholic Church, Crafton. Mr. Maher operated a cigar stand in the Fifth Avenue Arcade for many years. He leaves his wife, Mrs. Jean Jones Maher; a daughter, Betty Maher, and two sisters, Miss Elizabeth and Miss Mary Maher, of New York.

Ryall Funeral.

Funeral services for Mrs. Oliver B. Ryall, 85, who died in the home of her sister, Mrs. Harry Woods Grier, 6637 Wilkins avenue, Saturday were held today. Born in Indiana County, she has been a resident of Pittsburgh more than 50 years.

Councilman Albert Sohn.

Leetsdale Borough officials and Odd Fellows of Ambridge will attend special services tonight for Councilman Albert Sohn, in his home, 147 Broad street, Leetsdale. Sohn, 48, appointed to fill the unexpired term of his father, William Sohn, two years ago, was re-elected to the borough Council November 4, for a four-year term. He suffered a stroke the day he was elected, while at work at the Spang-Chalfant Company, Ambridge, where he was a stationary engineer. He died in his home yesterday. Besides his sister, Miss Viola Sohn, with whom he made his home, Sohn leaves another sister and a brother. He was Noble Grand of the Ambridge Odd Fellows, and a member of the Elks Lodge, Ambridge. He belonged to the Lutheran Church, Leetsdale.

Stephen G. Check.

Stephen G. Check, 42, funeral director, died yesterday in his home, 36 Milford street, Duquesne. Born in Czecho-Slovakia, he came to this country in 1906 and for 16 years was a funeral director in Duquesne. He was a member of Holy Trinity Catholic Church of Duquesne. Mr. Check leaves two sons, William and Stephen, Jr.; five daughters, Miss Margaret, Miss Elizabeth, Miss Eleanor, Miss Dorothy and Miss Elsie; two brothers, John G. Check, of Monessen, and Joseph F. Check, of McKeesport, and a sister, Mrs. Mary Gergach.

Gaus Funeral.

Funeral services for Mrs. Anna Mary Gaus, who died Saturday in her home, 1002 Haslage avenue, North Side, will be held tomorrow. She leaves two sons, Andrew M. and John F.; two sisters and two brothers.

WHEN YOUR CHILD COUGHS

DON'T USE DOPE

"There was Dorn at the front door—home from the party coughing and sneezing. Poor kid—believe me, I was scared. I bundled her up nice and warm, and gave her Smith Brothers' Cough Syrup. By seven o'clock she felt much better and ate her dinner. The cough cleared up, the cold passed away. In two days she was back in school again! . . ." Mrs. P. F. Cane, Brooklyn, N.Y.

THESE are the facts and any chemist will confirm them: Many cough syrups actually contain DOPE : : : Dope—that means opium, morphine, ether, chloroform and similar drugs.

Mothers asked for a cough syrup without dope, or narcotics, or drugs : : : And, after many experiments Smith Brothers have developed a new SAFE syrup: Smith Brothers' Triple Action Cough Syrup. It contains no dope, no drugs, nothing that could upset or harm your child. Instead of dope, the far more efficient—but SAFE—principle of "Triple Action" stops the cough. So quickly does Triple Action work—and so surely—that even stubborn coughs simply melt away . : : Children like the taste. Only 35c.

The debbies are delighted that a new party has just been added to the social calendar—a dinner dance. In this season when evening entertainments are few, an evening dance is a flamboyant event.

Mrs. James W. Reed of Woodlawn road [illegible] giving a small dinner dance Saturday night [illegible] Club for her granddaughter, Elinor Baird Reed.

Debs a Dinner

[illegible] But [illegible] chatting and [illegible] for this week. I want to tell you about the debs of this season. [illegible] feted Saturday night by Dr. and Mrs. Robert Mellon at a dinner given in the Pittsburgh Field Club. And the guest of honor was Ruth Willock.

Dominating [illegible] of the week-end will be the dance the [illegible] Cutcheons and Jane McCall Bell will give for their debutante cousin, Louise Bissell Scranton and Rita Bell Lawrence, both Pittsburgh's most popular debs. The affair will be [illegible] in the exclusive Pittsburgh Club.

Another event of the week-end will be the house party Ernest Hillman will give at the Woodmont Road [illegible] Woodmont. Mrs. [illegible] Building, Rita Bontrager, Katharine Frazer and Lucile Todd four of the debs.

Pittsburgher Engaged To Marry Ohio Girl

Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Webster of Cincinnati, O., announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Ruth Webster, to James Perry Stephens, Jr., son of Mrs. Elsie G. Stephens and the late Prof. James P. Stephens of Pittsburgh. The betrothal will terminate in a wedding during the Christmas holidays in Cincinnati.

Schools to Be Used For Christmas Mail

In preparation for the [illegible] heavy Christmas mail arrangements have been made for the postoffice to use quarters in the Peabody High School, North Highland avenue, and Liberty school, Ellsworth avenue, where letters and parcel post packages may be mailed. In some boroughs school rooms will be procured for handling some mail.

Homewood Post Host To State Officials

Homewood Post No. 351, American Legion, will be hosts to George C. Brown, Masontown, Pa., Grand Chef de Gare, and Matty B. Bain, Uniontown, Grande Correspondente of La Garde Voiture le Department de Pennsylvania, La Societe des 40 Hommes et Eight Chevaux, at its regular monthly meeting, January 6.

This meeting will be known as Forty and Eight night with County Chef de Gare Glenn B. James of Local Voiture No. 5 and staff in attendance.

CLUB NOTES

College Concert

An unusual setting has been planned for the annual Christmas concert to be given Wednesday evening by the Seton Hill College Glee Club in Cecilian Hall at the college. A huge Christmas tree and around this the singers in surplice and cassock, will give their program. They will be assisted by Miss Catherine Rubino, soprano of Greensburg, and Miss Liesel Ohl, contralto daughter of Mme. Emmy Ohl, of the college, as soloists. Alvina Knopka, of Shamokin, will give the scriptural reading.

The Glee Club quartet, composed of Miss Dorothy Shuman, Homestead; Miss Elizabeth White, Bellevue; Miss Margaret O'Meara, Pittsburgh, and Miss Knopka and the newly organized trio, Miss Cecilia O'Boyle, Donora; Miss Esther A. Rodgers, Pittsburgh, and Miss Mary Daly, Youngstown, will also appear in groups.

* * *

The Brookside Woman's Club will meet tomorrow in the home of Mrs. Elmer T. Wible, with Mrs. D. Walter Smith and Mrs. Walter H. Phillips assisting the hostess.

Miss Mary Jane Paul will talk on "Christmas in Song and Story." Led by the club choral under the direction of Mrs. William Weiss, the club members will sing Christmas carols.

* * *

At the home of Miss Dorothy Francesco, Academy avenue, Mt. Lebanon, the Alpha Iota Alumnae chapter will have its December meeting tonight.

* * *

The first afternoon meeting of the Wightman Parent-Teachers' Association will take place tomorrow in the school auditorium.

The program chairman, Mrs. Paul Warner, will introduce Dr. Joseph K. Wamble, who will talk on "What Every Mother Should Know." The music chairman, Mrs. Harold Solomon, is to present Mrs. Edith Canter Lavear, accompanied by Grace T. Tower, and the Wightman Trio, composed of Mrs. Ben Graham, violin; Miss Rose M. Helfrich, cello, and Mrs. Harold Solomon, piano.

'Army' Confident Of Relief Funds

Confidence that funds and donations to provide the usual Christmas dinners and needed clothing for poor families will be contributed was expressed yesterday by the Salvation Army officials at their headquarters, 428 Boulevard of the Allies.

The officials admitted funds and contributions are lagging, but special efforts by volunteer workers are being made to care for the extra number of cases this year.

Duquesne Heights Association Elects

Joseph A. Heyl was elected president of the Duquesne Heights Civic Association at its regular annual reorganization meeting. John Donovan and Mrs. W. P. Madigan were elected vice presidents.

SMART ACCESSORIES REJUVENATE FROCKS

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Dec. 14.—First aid, in the form of some grand new accessories, is at hand to rejuvenate and restore frocks that have already seen much service, yet are still wearable. For there are ever so many women who have refused to buy cheap frocks, preferring to sacrifice quantity to quality, by purchasing only a couple of gowns, in contrast to former lavish orders. A wise procedure, since the good frock always shows its aristocratic lineage, just as humans do. And so, with some smart accessories, one can wear a good model all season, conscious of looking as charming and chic as ever. And if that is not good for a depressed soul, well, we don't know what would be.

NOW FOR SOME new ideas in the accessory line. There are two nice looking bags, life-savers for your coat or suit if it isn't in the first flush of youth. The first from Deugis is of dark brown felt with a loop of polished silver metal. The top and long clip fastener are of the same metal. The other purse is by Andre Dallioux and is quite smart. The purse sketched here was made to a customer's order to match a coat of brown and beige tweed. The top has a rolled edge of brown galalith. At one side is a corner piece in silver metal on which may be engraved one's initials.

ROTARY ANNS TO GIVE MUSICAL TEA

Ida M. Halstead Becomes Bride In Church

G. A. Halstead, of North Highland avenue, announces the marriage of his daughter, Miss Ida Mae Halstead, to Rodger W. Murtaugh, of Pittsburgh, son of T. E. Murtaugh, of New York, which was solemnized Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the First United Presbyterian Church of Wilkinsburg. Officiating was the Rev. Dr. James Best.

The bride wore a gown of blue velvet with a hat of metallic cloth and velvet and carried fall flowers. Miss Jean Wise, as maid of honor, wore wine velvet with a matching hat and carried fall flowers. A. C. Sparago served as best man. Miss Adelaide Simpson, organist, played the wedding music.

There was a dinner for the bridal party and families after which Mr. Murtaugh and his bride left on a motor trip. After December 21 they will be at home in Dormont.

MEXICO CHURCH FETE ASSAILED

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 14.—(AP.)—The war department's dismissal of its headquarters band from the army because the band gave an unauthorized concert at the Basilica of Guadalupe Saturday was announced in the newspapers yesterday without comment.

El Nacional, organ of the National Revolutionary (government) party, devoted part of its front page, however, to editorials and interviews attacking the clergy and the church over the celebration at the Basilica. The ceremonies marked the four hundredth anniversary of the supposed appearance of the Virgin of Guadalupe, Mexico's patron saint, to a humble Indian.

It is customary for military bands in Mexico to accept private engagements, but only with authorization from the department of war. The announcement of the dismissal of the headquarters band indicated it had failed to obtain the necessary permission for the concert.

DRIVEN TO SEA, PILOT SAVED

PATCHOGUE, N. Y., Dec. 14.—(INS.)—A vivid story of heroism in a hazardous air adventure, during which his airplane was driven 60 miles out to sea while he was flying blind through rainstorms and fog, was told today by John Wolf, Summit (N. J.) air mail pilot.

The flier's safe landing here after his battle with the elements in his flight from Cleveland, O., was due to his iron nerve, Wolf found his radio set had gone dead 15 minutes after his takeoff, so he could get no beacon signals. Through flares he discovered he was far out over the ocean. He succeeded in turning around, and finally made out Montauk Point. His fuel was nearly exhausted.

Members of the volunteer fire brigade here spotted the plane, realized its plight and sounded the fire siren. Apparatus and many villagers in cars responded, and the headlights from the machines were used to signal Wolf a safe guide to a level landing spot.

DOLL LADY

Deluged With Requests For Her Glorious, Big

"HONEYBUNCH"

... The Aristocrat of All Dolls ...

Read the Doll Lady's Urgent Message Today:—

Dear Little Girls:

"I don't really know whether I am glad or I am sorry that Christmas is so near. I know that I'm glad because so many, many little girls have not delayed in doing what I asked them to do and have already secured their "Honeybunch." I'll be sorry for the little girls who delayed. It isn't at all too late to get one of these marvelous dolls. But, if you want one, you should write to me right away. You still have ten days to do the simple things that I want you to do and for which I will so gladly give you one of these glorious big dolls.

Hundreds of little girls in Pittsburgh and vicinity have already discovered that "Honeybunch" is different from any other doll that "Honeybunch" is absolutely beautiful and that this lovable dolly can do a lot of cute things that real live babies can do. "Honeybunch" is almost as big as some of the little girls who have already taken her home—just about 20 inches tall. She has a smile that spreads sunshine and her eyes laugh with her. Yes, they open and close and her darling voice reaches your heart every time you hear it. "Honeybunch" is gorgeously dressed in dainty organdy, with lace cap and shoes and stockings to match. She has rubber arms and hands that you can wash and she is as nearly unbreakable as a doll can be made.

Please don't wait until it is too late. If you want a "Honeybunch" all for yourself send me your name and address on the coupon below and I'll write you a letter telling how easy it is to get this big, magnificent doll. And I'll send you a picture to color.

Here are the names of some of the little girls in Pittsburgh who have already secured "Honeybunch" for a playmate: Helen Duddy, 2325 West Mar St.; Anna Maureen, 832 Peralta St.; Sarah May Boles, 852 Saw Mill Way; Mary J. Wagner, 411 Hawkins Ave.; Marie Merlino, 2532 Mulberry Way; Joyce Carroll, 1122 Hamlin St.; Mary Jane De Domenic, 230 Larimer Ave.; Helen Butler, 2320 Center Ave.; Mary Louise Manning, 7127 Fleury Way; Arline Ruth Levinson, 5210 Forbes St.; Dorothy Malachia, 2225 La Place St.; Lillian Gretter, 1204 Kelton Ave.; Virginia Kane, 122 Forty-third St.; Rosemary Baum, 1211 Reddour St.; Dorothy Taylor, 1245 Buena Vista St.; Mrs. Anna Logan, 1304 Vera St.; Betty Crowley, 1217 Superior St.; Louise Miller, 5837 Broad St.

Wives of Professional Men Must Be Broadminded

Grandpa used to say that "The devil finds work for idle hands to do"—and the old gentleman certainly knew his Satin.

As proof, here's Cora, the world's most horrible example of what idleness can do to a healthy young female who has nothing to do but sit around with her own cussedness.

Cora's husband is a professional singer and, contrary to all musical traditions, he seems to be a Regular Guy, with eyes for none but the little girl at home.

Yes, she knows that men who sing in public usually do get letters from fool femmes. And said letters aren't the slightest proof that hubby is a two-timer.

But—she's bound to hang tragedy on herself. And so, for at least 12 hours a day, she lolls around with her "heart choking her."

KNOWS HE LOVES HER

Personally, I think her heart shows sense. A couple of strenuous chokes and a half dozen good swats might be good for what ails her. Be that as it may, here's her letter:

Suppose it had come to you?

"Dear Sally:

"I need advice. I can't ask my friends for it. I don't want them to know how I feel. It is about my husband. He is a professional man, and, naturally, women flock around him. He is a singer. They don't call for him at our home but they crowd around him when he entertains. I have found letters in his pockets at times.

"Of course, he has an excuse for himself. My mother would say 'come home' if I told her about it, but I don't want to leave him, and I'm not going to. And I don't believe he would ever leave me. But I am jealous, because I love him.

"I know that he loves me too. He gives me everything that money can buy. I have a maid and a car. And he respects me, too. He only takes me to the best places, with the best people.

HAS ALL SHE WANTS

"Do I ask too much—more than a man can give—when I want him for myself alone? I am true to him. I have never had any sweethearts, or cheated on him. Everyone remarks about me. I am an attractive woman, and I am true to him because I want only to be his.

"It seems as if my heart will choke me. I am so blue. I hate to feel that when he is away he may be with some other woman. He said once that all—or most all—men had more than one woman, but loved only one. He says he loves me, and I believe he does, but I guess I don't understand.

"Maybe I'm just a foolish woman who believes in storybook marriage. I wish I could cry. I wish I were dead. If love won't make me happy, what will? I've got money, time to do what I please and everything. Maybe I want the moon. Please help me if you can. I am so wretched. What is wrong?

"CORA."

"A Disappointed Wife."

So you "want the moon," do you?

Well, MAYBE. But I suspect, lady, that YOU ALREADY HAVE IT—and that's just what is wrong with you! You have too much—too much money, too much time, too much of everything—and since you haven't any real troubles, you've been going out of your way to make some.

FIND NEW INTERESTS

Of course, women'll flock around your husband if he sings, but what of it? What of it if you keep your mind sparkling and alive, and full of the zest for living? What of it if you can give him a gay and helpful comradeship? Nothing!

But you can't do that if you're going to sit at home, empty handed and empty headed, waiting for him; or if you're going to meet him with a long face and a heart full of suspicion.

You'll lose him, as sure as God made little apples, and if you do, it won't be "other women" who get him away from you. It'll be yourself!

So get busy. Fill your time and your hands and your mind. Join a club. Read the papers. Study. Find out what's going on in the world. Find someone you can help. Learn to be a live woman—not just a pretty, painted doll, waiting for an armful of toys to be poured into your lap.

Some Carried Away With Greed That Comes With Success—Fay King

IF I HAD A LOT OF MONEY I'D BE SO GENEROUS!
YES I'LL SELL YOU THAT LITTLE DRESS FOR TWENTY DOLLARS
THE MORE MONEY HE MAKES THE MORE HE WANTS.
FAY KING

By FAY KING

It is surprising how quickly some forget their early struggles and privations and are carried away with the greed that seems to come with success.

Instead of being satisfied with what was once beyond their wildest hope, they become even more dissatisfied and want more and more.

I am reminded of a girl who married a rich man and while she continued to be very nice to her old friends, it was because she wanted them to see how much more than they she now had. I was amazed when one of her friends told me that she was willing to sell them some of her dresses but at a price she must have known was a great deal for them to pay.

Continuation of Love's Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Lillian Appoints Herself as Director

Lillian's answer to my tremulous question as to what was keeping Katherine was so elaborately careless that it confirmed my conviction of some secret understanding between them. That it concerned the work which I was trying to do on the third act of my play before Philip Veritzen should arrive on the morrow, I was equally sure.

"She's probably decided she ought to take a look at the baby before she comes back," she said.

I was silent, for I knew that this was a preposterous premise. Katherine, a most competent and experienced nurse, does not believe in disturbing the rest of tiny babies—or larger ones—by popping in on them at frequent intervals to see if they are all right. I knew that Katie was sitting on the little veranda outside Katherine's room, enjoying the moonlight, and ready to call one of us if Faith should so much as whimper.

"Here she comes now!" Lillian's tone was the perfunctory one which heralds entrances. "Katrina, what ever have you been doing? Madge has been imagining everything, from colic attack on Faith's part to a fall down the cellar stairs for yours."

"It's very simple," Katherine said lightly, as she set down the box of figurines. "I couldn't find this dratted thing. Somebody had pushed it back under a lot of other things."

"Mother Graham, no doubt," Lillian said, smugly. "She probably had a spell of putting things to rights while you two were away."

Again my brain clicked disbelief, although her conjecture concerning my mother-in-law held more of probability than the one about Katherine and the baby. But it was not until Katherine took the cover from the box of figurines and handed it to me that I comprehended the kindly ruse of my friends.

For—my "uncanny memory" was functioning perfectly—I had a very clear picture of those doll actors when I had put them away. They had been dressed in the costumes required by their roles, for I had not realized how long it would be before I should touch them again. Katherine, during the minutes at which I had wondered, had undressed them, and put the clothing away neatly in the "wardrobe room" which was a part of the miniature theater.

This, then, had been the reason for the signal which I was sure had passed between them when Katherine went out of the room! Both women knew in what a blue funk I was over the writing of this third act, and they were counting upon the distraction which the dressing of the dolls would afford me, hoping that I would "snap back to normalcy." Lillian's favorite parody on the famous phrase.

"Do me a favor, Lady, please!" Lillian went down on one knee before me in a burlesque appeal. "Let me be great big director of this here thing, allee samee old Phil himself, for an hour or two."

"If you can direct an idea or two into my so-called brain, that is all I ask," I rejoined.

She rose to her feet and tapped me lightly on the head. "It isn't so solid as you imagined," she said with the air of one weighing a question. "And I didn't hear an echo, so it isn't absolutely empty. I have distinct hopes of you if you'll follow directions blindly. Now, then, everybody, your attention, please!"

She looked at the figurines still in the box, and made a wildly impatient gesture.

"None of you are dressed for your roles!" she exclaimed. "Didn't you understand that this was to be a dress rehearsal?" she took out an imaginary watch and consulted it. "You have ten minutes," she announced, severely. "Anyone not back here completely ready for rehearsal will be fined."

"We wardrobe mistresses have our job cut out for us," she said, "to get these all dressed and set out in position for the raising of the curtain on the first act."

"Is this Cuthbert or Percy?" she said, voicing the names which we had playfully given to my characters when I was in the throes of the first writing and found it hard to choose the names. I had used them ever since, even when I had found the names I wanted, and written them down in my formal script.

"I'm not so sure," she said, as we all three sprang to our feet, listening tensely.

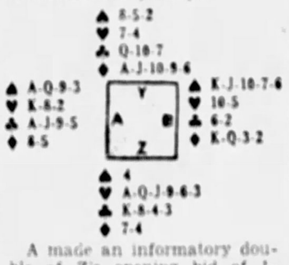
OFFICIAL SYSTEM As Adopted by Leading Authorities

By E. V. SHEPARD

Voluntary Responses Show Game

An adverse overcall of an informatory double cancels the obligation for a response by the doubler's partner, but unless a sacrifice is intended because the opposing score is dangerous, a voluntary bid by the doubler's partner announces game expectations. The following hand illustrates this principle.



A made an informatory double of Z's opening bid of 1-Heart. Both to show his dislike for hearts and his strength in diamonds. Y overcalled the double with 2-Diamonds, perhaps also hoping to shut out any illuminating response by the doubler's partner.

Y-Z had a part game score, which made it possible that A did not have all that his double promised, but B held game prospects, provided A's double was sound, so he promptly bid 2-Spades. Z's strength and Y's voluntary bid encouraged Z to bid 3-Hearts, whereupon A shot a game declaration of 4-Spades, ending contracting. Of course game was made with the loss of a single trick in hearts, clubs and diamonds respectively.

Remember these two important methods of showing game expectations when partner has made an informatory double: the first is the unnecessarily high response when no bid intervenes; the second is the voluntary response over an intervening declaration.

On the hand shown below spades are trumps; the opening lead is the queen of diamonds; can Z go game from love score against any subsequent defense? The answer will be given Thursday.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Brittle nails are a pest and a bother, breaking when there is no manicure file handy. Nails will become pliable if they are soaked in hot olive or mineral oil every night. Or, if that is too much trouble, force cold cream under the eaves of the nails.

When winter comes and steam heat flourishes, the entire body surface may suffer from excessive dryness. In which event the oil bath is a soothing consolation. The best medium for this beauty rite is cocoanut oil which has a way of doing a disappearing act. Massage with boric talcum should follow the oil rub.

A Theater Incident

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I would like your opinion of an incident of recent happenings. My girl friend and myself attended a talkie last night and in front of us were seated a couple. The man had his arm around the shoulder of the woman and his head on her shoulder. My friend objected and asked him to sit up. My friend also giggled after asking them to straighten up. We disagreed as to the right or wrong of her action. Was she in the right.

YETTA.

If your friend made this request to discipline the couple, then she was not in the right (and especially since she did this in such an undignified way), but if she did it because her view of the screen was obstructed, she certainly had the right to do it, just as we have the right to ask a person sitting in front of us at a performance to remove her hat when it obstructs our view.

Always, too, in this circumstance, it is, perhaps, wisest to ask the attendant to make this request for please-do-not-obstruct-the-view, for then it becomes impersonal and professional.

Rings

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am to be married soon, but I have not received an engagement ring as yet. I prefer to wait until a later time when my fiance can really afford one. I am to have a platinum wedding ring encircled with diamonds, and also a sapphire guard ring with it, if I care to. I have always admired the two rings together, but have only noticed them worn by old married women. Can a young bride also wear them?

C.

Yes. There isn't any question of age concerning this . . . it is a question of taste and choice, and I agree with you that these rings are lovely together.

IN spite of all that is written on the care and feeding of infants, our guess from behind the grocery counter is that the care and feeding of husbands is equally important.

Of course, you don't have to prepare formulas for husbands. But you do have to buy the right food. And you do have to buy good food.

Don't say the best food is expensive . . . It isn't.

A&P prices on the best foods obtainable are always low. For A&P is quick to sell for less when it buys for less. We are so close to all the places where food is grown that whenever a prune or a potato is selling at a bargain in the great food markets, our stores offer that bargain almost immediately.

TROJAN SCORE MAY DEPRESS TULANE

COACH HOWARD JONES may have another game half won in advance as a result of the manner in which he turned loose the full power of his Southern California football machine against Georgia in Los Angeles Saturday. That 60 to 0 score isn't likely to add anything to the confidence of the Tulane gridders as the latter prepare for their Rose Bowl meeting with the Trojans on New Year's Day.

Howard Jones

Possibly Jones was aiming to impress Tulane in rolling up such a huge score against Georgia. In any event, that's the effect it may have. The best that Tulane could do against Georgia was 20 to 7, and the realization that the team they are to face on January 1 was strong enough to treble their own winning score and at the same time hold the Athens eleven pointless, isn't calculated to make the New Orleans players feel any too sure of themselves. They won't be able to go into the Pasadena classic with the same confidence they would have shown if Georgia had given the Trojans a close fight.

IT IS EVIDENT that the South's years of supremacy on the coast is broken. [illegible] Southern team had ever lost a game out there but on Thanksgiving Day U. C. L. A. ended the streak by defeating Florida and if anything remained of the theory of southern superiority, Southern California destroyed it Saturday.

Perhaps Georgia's tough schedule had taken something out of the team before that game but even at that Southern California's amazing display of power was enough to convince the average football follower that Jones has the greatest eleven of the year. With all due respect to Tulane's strength it is doubtful if Bernie Bierman's forces will be able to do more than hold down the score to reasonable proportions in the Rose Bowl tussle.

THOUGH A GREAT spectacle as always and the means of raising more than $300,000 for charity, the Army-Navy game did not result in a way to promise an early resumption of regular annual gridiron relations between the service teams.

That makes eight games in a row in which Navy has not tasted victory—six wins for the Army and two ties—and the record may be offered by the Navy as an argument in support of its demand for a revision of West Point eligibility rules, claiming that there is little chance for the Middies in competition under the present system.

THE RESIGNATION OF Chick Meehan as football coach at New York U. caused no surprise, as it has been understood for some time that his contract there would not be renewed. One of the most colorful coaches and best showmen in the game, Meehan probably will not be long out of a job. Rumor has it that he may land in the Big Ten. Coaching shifts are to be numerous again this winter, judging from the flying start. With Wally Steffen's return to Carnegie Tech not yet assured, Fritz Crisler has withdrawn at Minnesota, Bernie Bierman has resigned at Tulane to go to Minnesota, Burt Ingwersen has quit at Iowa, Gibby Welch has given up his post at Morris Harvey, and several other changes are reported due at any time.

Carl Hageman

THE RECENT ELECTION of Carl Hageman, of Lorain, as captain of the Harvard football team for next year added to the distinction attained by Ohio in the production of major collegiate gridiron leaders for 1932. The Buckeye State is believed to be on the road to a record in that direction.

Hageman was the seventh of Ohio's sons to be chosen for a captaincy. Chrnegie Tech started it off by electing Bill Sample, of Middleton, as a co-captain with George Kavel, and then followed the naming of John S. Wilbur, of Cleveland, at Yale; Ivan Williamson, of Bowling Green, at Michigan; Robert Monnett, of Bucyrus, at Michigan State; Robert L. Smith, of Steubenville, at Colgate, and Lewis Hinchman, Columbus, son of Bill Hinchman, Pirate baseball scout, at Ohio State.

REMEMBER BEMUS PIERCE? Veteran football fans of this district will recall him readily. He starred in the line for the Carlisle Indians in the late '90's and afterward, with his brother Hawley, he played here as a professional, notably with the Homestead All-Stars, led by Bill Church, of Princeton. Still later he was coach at Kenyon College in Gambier, O.

Well, Bemus is one of the many old-timers who won't believe that football today is what it was 30 years ago and more. He so expressed himself after looking at a game in the Olympic Stadium, Los Angeles.

PIERCE, LONG STATIONED at Sherman Institute in Riverside, Cal., was accompanied by Bert Jamison, coach of the long distance runners that have made the institute famous. After sitting through the game in silence, Bemus turned to Jamison and said: "That's the last time I'll pay $3.50 to see a football game. It's not football at all nowadays. It's just time out and a parade of the water wagon on the field." According to coast reports, Pierce, almost 60, still is straight as an arrow, weighs 200 pounds and is in splendid health.

ONE REASON WHY Battling Battalino is such an improved fighter is that his hands are again sound. Both were smashed on the head of Andre Routis in the bout in which Battalino won the featherweight championship September 23, 1929. It was feared for a time that his punching days were over.

It required a series of complicated operations, with th taking of 114 stitches in his hands to patch up the broken maulies. But the hands were still tender and the Battler feared to take a chance with them. He became a mauler. Last summer, however, he discovered that he could shoot a punch to an opponent's chin without suffering any ill effects and now, with his guns loaded again, he is one of the hardest punchers among the little fellows.

IN THE 31 YEARS of the American League's existence, Al Simmons is only the third player to win the batting championship twice in succession. Simmons topped the list last year with .381 and has been crowned king again for 1931 with a mark of .390, a gain of nine points in spite of the raised stitches in the ball.

Napoleon Lajoie and Ty Cobb were the only other to lead in successive years, Lajoie in the batting in 1903 and 1904 while Cobb led from 1907 to 1915, inclusive, and then a run in 1917-18-19.

Marcel Camp

MARCEL CAMP, the young pocket billiardist who gave the present world championship tournament in Philadelphia its most sensational turn by administering the only defeat suffered to date by Erwin Rudolph, titleholder, gave up Hollywood for a cue career. He went to the coast from his home in Detroit four years ago to break into the movies, but after two months he decided he liked pocket billiards better and returned to his favorite game. Though hardly a world championship possibility yet, as Ralph Greenleaf demonstrated by beating him Saturday, Camp is rated by some judges the most promising player developed since Greenleaf made his debut. He is a natural cueist and fine shotmaker. He won the 1929 and 1931 northern sectional title; and the 1931 eastern all-star tournament.

CHICK QUITS VIOLETS WITH FINE RECORD

In a statement he said he desired "no consideration be given to the renewal of his contract."

Meehan, who has coached the Violets for the last seven years and produced a number of nationally prominent football teams, made known his decision in a formal statement. He said he had made no plans for 1932.

Chick Meehan

The coach's statement indicated New York University had made no offer to renew his contract which was understood to call for an annual salary of $18,000. Reports for some time had been that he would be asked to remain another year at a reduced figure.

"My high regard for New York University prompts me to announce that I desire no consideration be given to the renewal of my football coaching contract.

"I want emphatically to voice the honor and esteem which I hold for the boys who have played under my direction during the past seven years, these boys having met and complied with the entrance and eligibility requirements of New York University.

NO PLANS FOR 1932

"I am also appreciative of the many friends and associates I have made at New York University and I desire not to involve either them or the boys in any controversy.

"A copy of this statement has been forwarded to Chancellor Elmer E. Brown.

"For the press, I offer the information that I have made no coaching plans for 1932."

Meehan, in addition to his coaching successes, has gained prominence as president of the American Football Coaches Association for 1931. He has introduced a number of innovations in football coaching methods including a special line shift from huddle to the cadence of an audible count.

Former coach and quarterback at the University of Syracuse, Meehan has had a spectacular career with New York University, whose gridiron fortunes he lifted to unusual prominence. Stars like Ken Strong, all-America back and Al Lassman, giant tackle, helped attract national attention to his 1927-28 elevens.

Tragedy overtook two of the stars of these teams, Lassman, who was drowned in Maine, and Cowboy Ed Hill, blocking back, who was accidentally shot to death. Lassman had never fully recovered from the effects of a head injury in New York's famous game with Carnegie Tech in 1928.

TEAMS SUCCESSFUL

Some of the methods employed at New York University in connection with alleged football recruiting and subsidizing were subjected to criticism in Bulletin 23 of the Carnegie Foundation two years ago. Shortly before that Meehan had ironed out differences with athletic authorities and signed a new three-year contract, which has just expired.

Under Meehan's direction N. Y. U. teams continued to enjoy success as well as popularity. In contrast with general declines over the country, the Violets attracted bigger crowds this year, an official statement placing the attendance rise at 32 per cent before the Tennessee game.

Although N. Y. U. has not fared so well intersectionally, losing this year to Oregon, Georgia and Tennessee, its record for seven years is impressive. It shows 49 victories, 15 defeats and four ties.

MILLION PASSED IN RELIEF TILTS

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(AP.)—Football's contribution toward the relief of the unemployed has passed the $1,000,000 mark, thanks principally to the Army-Navy clash in the Yankee Stadium.

A crowd of 78,000, paying approximately $375,000 for the privilege, watched a determined Navy defense finally yield to superior Army power, 17-7, in one of the finest football games of the season. Of the gross receipts, about $325,000 was realized for charity.

Army had to share some of its glory with Navy. Underdogs in the betting and outweighed more than 10 pounds to the man, Navy offered so gallant a defense that Army was forced to take to the air to win. The Cadets' first score, a placement field goal by Travis Brown, from the 15-yard line, came after Navy had stopped the Cadet running attack cold. The first Army touchdown came only after a long pass had put the ball in position for a score. The second Army touchdown came on a sustained march down field.

GOLF FINALISTS RESUME PLAY

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 14.—(AP.)—Willy Cox, Brooklyn pro, was 5 up on George Von Elm, Los Angeles, at the halfway mark of their 36-hole final match of the $7,500 national match play open golf championship yesterday when it was postponed because torrential rains had turned the Lake Merced course into a puddle-covered layout.

The second 18 holes are to be played this afternoon.

PANTHER FIVE, BADGERS PLAY TOMORROW

By JESS CARVER

Beginning tonight, the colors of old Pitt will be lugged freely about the country between here and California from now on until after New Year's as Dr. Hal Carlson leads his Golden Panthers of basketball into the great Midwest and from there to the Coast.

Tim Lawry

The Pitt squad, an even baker's dozen in numerical strength, entrains tonight at 10:30 o'clock for Chicago and from there will travel on to Madison, Wis., where tomorrow it will open its long grind by tackling the University of Wisconsin's Badgers. After meeting the Badgers the Panthers will take on Indiana, Purdue, Kansas, Colorado, California, Stanford, Southern California and the Los Angeles Athletic Club. Two games will be played with Southern Cal and three with Kansas.

Pitt won't show its stuff here again until January 13, when the Dukes will be met in the first game of the three-cornered series for the city title. It's a long trip and a hard one, and if the noble Panthers finish up with a 50-50 rating, they'll be due great acclaim.

PITT RECORD FINE

Pitt's success in the Middle West, especially among Big Ten teams, has been exceptional in the past. Never before have the locals engaged an opponent in basketball west of Montana. The experience will be very new, not only to Pitt, but also to the entire East.

In addition to Coach Carlson and Manager Johnny Alexander, the following players will make the trip: Co-captains Kowalis and Lawry, Ochsenhirt, Tip Kowalis, Wrobleski, Don Smith, McCamant, Forsberg, Hughes and Bogda.

After the second very successful basketball clinic the Panthers started their arduous 1931-32 campaign Saturday night by clashing with Temple University. By the time the Panthers finished with the Owls there were some 4,000 of the faithful in the stands ready to stand up on their hind legs and declare to the world that the good Doctor has another ball club in the making.

The mere fact that Pitt beat the formidable Owls by eight points wasn't so much it was the way the Golden Cats handled themselves and the ball as well, in the first tussle of the year and against a foe as worthy as Coach Usilton's charges. You can write this on the old slate right now, Temple won't lose many ball games this year. Those Owls are no slouches; they've speed and class and a mighty good man in little O'Brien.

SOPHOMORES STELLAR

The performance of his colts, McCamant and Ochsenhirt, warmed the very cockles of Coach Carlson's heart Saturday night. The lanky center, who is quick as a cat and exceptionally cool for a mere kid, gave the veteran Len

GREENLEAF MAY GAIN CROWN

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 14.—(AP.)—Ralph Greenleaf, of New York, the old cuemaster, appears headed for another pocket billiard crown as the national tournament here enters its final week with 46 matches already played.

With seven days to go, Greenleaf tops the 12-man field with a record of six conquests and not a single setback. He also leads the tournament in two other respects. His cluster of 117 is the best run, and his two-inning game is the best performance.

The defending champion, Erwin Rudolph, of Cleveland, is tied for second place by Frank Taberski, of Schenectady, N. Y., a former titleholder. Both have won five matches and dropped one.

But the nonchalant Greenleaf, who makes a shot and then calls his next one before the cue ball stops rolling, yields the spotlight to George Kelly as far as the local fans are concerned. The sensational Philadelphia youngster is right behind the champions, in fourth place. He has won six games and lost two, but has played two more than Greenleaf and one more than Rudolph and Taberski, who top him. The standings:

	W.	L.	H.R.
Greenleaf, New York	6	0	117
Rudolph, Cleveland	5	1	83
Taberski, Schenectady	5	1	75
Kelly, Philadelphia	4	2	83

Yellow Jackets' International League Titular Hopes Are Revived

BAMBINO LEADS ASSAULT ON RECORDS

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Outfielder Al Simmons, one of the brightest luminaries in the lineup of the Athletics, won the individual batting honors of the American League for the second consecutive year, according to the official figures of the 1931 season published today.

Al Simmons

Connie Mack's great ball hawk hung up a mark of .390 for the campaign. In 1930 he hit for .373. Among his 200 hits were 37 doubles, 13 triples and 22 home runs.

The incomparable Babe Ruth of the Yankees, finished second to Simmons with a mark of .373. Ed. Morgan, of the Indians, was third, with .351. Mickey Cochrane, of the Athletics, fourth, with .349, and Lou Gehrig, of the Yankees, fifth, with .341.

Outstanding accomplishments of the American League players, as furnished by the Howe News Bureau, follows:

New records were established by players on the New York, Boston and Cleveland teams and club records by New York and Chicago.

The New York Yankees created two new team records, the first when they faced the opposing pitchers 5,608 times, thus breaking the American League record of 5,592 made by Detroit in 1929, and broke their own record for most runs, 1,067. In 1930 they scored 1,062 times.

The Chicago White Sox finished last in batting, last in fielding and allowed their opponents 939 runs, thus creating a new American League record in this department.

RUTH SETS RECORDS

Chief of the record makers is George Herman Ruth, whose eighteenth season in the game was his best in many respects. Finishing a second in the race for individual honors, the highest point he has ever reached, with a mark of .373, also his best, Ruth tied with Gehrig for the most home runs, 46, was second in scoring with 149 runs, this being the ninth season he has crossed the plate 125 times or more and the tenth year he has hit 40 or more home runs. In all major league history the sluggers, except Ruth, have hit 40 or more home runs but nine times. The Bambino's 199 hits totaled 374 bases, this being the tenth season his total bases have exceeded 300. In each of five games he drove out two home runs. The number of games in which Babe has performed this feat has now reached 62, a feat unique.

Lou Gehrig also made a little history. Besides tying Ruth for the most home runs, 46, Lou made six of them in six consecutive games, August 28 to September 1, second game, inclusive, thus tying the record set by Ken Williams in 1922. The Yankees' first sacker also set a new league record when he drove in 184 runs, nine more than the previous league record set by himself in 1927.

The third member of the New York team to furnish head lines was young Ben Chapman, who scored 120 runs, drove in 120 and stole no less than 61 bases, a record unequaled in 15 years.

LU BLUE STARS

Earl Webb established a new world record for two-base hits with 67, surpassing by three the record made by First Baseman George Burns, of Cleveland, in 1926, but Pitcher Wesley Ferrell kept the Indians in the book by hitting nine home runs, a record for any major league pitcher, while Earl Averill drove out 32, something no player wearing a Cleveland uniform has been able to accomplish in more than 40 years.

One of the most remarkable records of the year was that of first baseman Lu Blue, of Chicago. On a team that finished eighth in the standing and eighth in team batting, Blue was sixth in scoring with 119 runs and worked the pitchers for 127 base on balls, only Ruth with 128 excelling him.

Gehrig led in runs scored, 163; in hits, 211; in total bases, 410; in runs driven in, 184, and was tied with Ruth for most home runs, 46.

Four clubs fell below the record for fewest sacrifice hits in a season, and of these the St. Louis Browns have the distinction of making the least, 61 sacrifice hits, which is the lowest on record since 1905. The Athletics stole only 27 bases, which is a new major league record.

MARKET SLIDES AFTER EARLY UPSWING

Weight of Selling Presses Number of Leaders to New Lows; Steel Declines

NEW YORK, Dec. 14—(AP.)—A flurry of short covering gave the stock market a momentary boost today, but the market ran into fresh liquidation after mid-day.

The railroads held up well, but the weight of selling in other sections of the list was heavy depressing a number of leading issues to new low levels. Losses of 2 to 3 or more points were registered by United States Steel, American Telephone, United Gas Improvement, Consolidated Gas and American Tobacco.

The railroads seeks benefited from reports that the railroad executives were confident that the controversy with their leaders would be adjusted at a reasonably early date. Nevertheless the weight of selling in other sections of the list caused loss of early railroad gains. In addition, Baltimore and Ohio, Southern Pacific and Pennsylvania declined around 2 points.

Leading Washington executives viewed the decision of the Japanese government to suspend payments in gold as a regrettable but by no means a irretrievably harmful expedient. American commerce, it was reasoned should be little effected.

The bulk of overseas news received today was more reassuring than otherwise. Particularly gratifying to the Wall street banking community was the statement of the British chancellor of the exchequer that the government was confident of its ability to balance the budget.

In some quarters a degree of concern was voiced over reports that Canada planned to take official action at an early date removing the dominion from the gold standard. Technically it was pointed out Canada has been off the gold basis for years.

WHEAT SLIDES AFTER RISE

CHICAGO, Dec. 14—Pronounced upturns in grain values early today resulted from scarcity of offerings. Confirmation of a wet harvest in Argentina indicated that important movement of wheat from that country would be delayed until the middle of January. Opening at ¾ to 1¼ cents advance wheat afterward gained a little more, but then reacted somewhat. Corn started unchanged to ⅜ up and subsequently rose further.

Retailers Rushing Holiday Orders To New York

NEW YORK, Dec. 14—(AP.)—Despite the New York department stores' wailing over poor holiday trade, the railroads report that shipments of merchandise to the metropolis are running considerably ahead of last year. It is possible, however, that the phrase "last year" is partly responsible, for retail goods are the opposite. The retailers could do it. Leading Washington executives viewed the decision of the Japanese government to suspend payments in gold as a regrettable but by no means a irretrievably harmful expedient. American commerce, it was reasoned should be little effected.

The bulk of overseas news received today was more reassuring than otherwise. Particularly gratifying to the Wall street banking community was the statement of the British chancellor of the exchequer that the government was confident of its ability to balance the budget.

In some quarters a degree of concern was voiced over reports that Canada planned to take official action at an early date removing the dominion from the gold standard. Technically it was pointed out Canada has been off the gold basis for years.

The Trader—in Barron's Weekly says—the volume of selling the past few days was so heavy, liquidation so genuine, and the decline in Steel common usually the leader in the late stages of a bear market, so rapid, as to suggest that something of a selling climax is in process of development. Psychology is virtually as abnormal as it was in 1929. Fundamentals are none too encouraging but in view of these various factors it is late in the day for rabid pessimism.

While partners of J. P. Morgan & Co. declined to comment on the abandonment of the gold standard by Japan, it was recalled that Thomas W. Lamont frequently alluded to the unusually long record of Japan in meeting all foreign obligations without a default. In a period dating back more than 20 centuries Japan had kept its record unblemished. All of Japan's bonds in this country, whether for the national government or for private corporations are in dollar denominations. Fluctuations in the value of the yen will make no difference in payment of principal and interest to holders of these securities who are to be paid in dollars.

American banks which have figured in the under-writing of more than $200,000,000 of Japanese securities in the New York market, have closely followed the efforts of that country against heavy odds in its campaign to re-establish the Japanese yen on a gold basis. Leading bankers, silk importers, cotton exporters and other American business men who deal with Japan do not expect any unusual difficulties to grow out of the Japanese government's latest action.

Rumors that Canada plans officially to abandon the gold standard have not been confirmed. Bankers have arranged to prevent exports of gold, and the Canadian dollar has been permitted to fall below gold parity.

Payment of the final quarterly installment on income taxes for 1931 is due tomorrow, and it was assumed that some of the heavy selling which came into the stock market in the course of the day resulted from the necessity for securing funds needed for that purpose. The substantial character of the liquidation in many stocks, however, left little doubt that much of the offerings represented the forced liquidation of collateral behind security loans where the position had been weakened by the recent sharp plunge of the market through the previous bottom levels of the bear market.

Cotton Cloth Sales Above Production

NEW YORK, Dec. 14—(AP.)—Sales of carded cotton cloths during November amounted to 96.9 per cent of production, the Association of Cotton Textile Merchants reported today.

The report said that both sales and shipments during the month were greater than in November last year, sales showing an increase of 22.5 per cent, and shipments gaining 6.6 per cent.

Production last month amounted to 231,446,000 yards. Sales last month amounted to 224,207,000 yards, and shipments totaled 213,889,000 yards, equal to 92.4 per cent of production.

FOREIGN DISTRUST [illegible] America's financial strength and of American investments has disappeared [illegible] of American securities by foreign interests is now reported.

TRADE AND EMPLOYMENT figures reveal [illegible] other shrinkage, although that is the best that can be said.

THESE FACTS are here narrated in the hope that they may be given a modicum of consideration by those who are throwing bonds and stocks on the market at sacrifice prices and because sentiment in Wall street has again sunk to deplorable depths.

It is persistently reported that large banks have been forcing securities on the market day after day, both for their own account and for borrowers unable to respond to peremptory demands for additional collateral. Not a few prominent banks have already become little more than vaults. Complaint comes from many quarters that applications for loans are refused right and left and that pressure to cut down loans continues relentlessly.

If this be so, the results, instead of making for safety and stability, may prove alarmingly demoralizing. This is pre-eminently the time for the exercising of statesmanship by those controlling the nation's purse-strings.

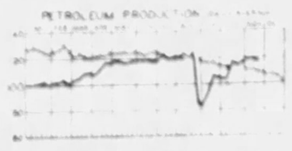
Stability of Oil Industry Again Threatened

BY GEORGE H. SNYDER

DRASTIC MEASURES TAKEN in August and September to bring petroleum production into line with demand were successful in strengthening prices but they have not had any permanent effect in bringing the industry under control. Output has increased steadily for the past three months and the oil trade is facing a set of conditions which are much like those found early last summer.

Proration of output has kept production far below the potential capacity of the fields now in operation, but it has not reduced output to a great enough extent to start the oil industry on the road toward lasting stabilization.

The effect of the restriction of production in East Texas and Oklahoma City is shown by the adjoining chart. It also discloses the steady increase in output to a point far in excess of last year's production since these fields were developed. The heavy black line on the chart, prepared by the United States Department of Commerce, indicates production this year. The lighter line shows last year's output. The index number 100 is the weekly average from 1923 to 1925. The closing of the East Texas and Oklahoma fields actually brought output below this average, but proration has been unsuccessful in keeping production under sufficient control to [illegible].



Price Weakness Expected

IN A REVIEW OF THE POSITION of the oil industry Bradstreet's declares that price weakness must be expected in the future unless gasoline production is from now on subjected to more rigid control.

The review states that October will be remembered for the nearly complete abandonment of the compulsory proration movement in the oil industry. In speaking of the three major price determining factors—supply, demand and stocks—during the past two years, Bradstreet's says:

"During 1931 stocks apparently declined at a proportionately greater rate than demand, but when it is realized that this reduction of stocks was at the expense of increasing gasoline stocks, it will be seen that nothing has been accomplished.

Conditions Not Corrected

"THOUGH NOT OVERPRODUCING at present, the industry has not corrected conditions brought about by the 1929 overproduction. Two months of enforced curtailment accomplished little.

"The gasoline situation is no better. Consumption during September and October was above seasonal expectations due to the warm weather. The trend of consumption over the past two years, however, has been nearly stationary, and with cold weather now here, these slight gains are not expected to continue.

"Stocks, which were allowed to accumulate out of proportion to demand during most of 1930, were reduced sufficiently to stabilize price during the first two months of 1931. Since then, however, they have again gradually accumulated, making October, after seasonal adjustment, a peak for the year.

"Reflecting this poor statistical position, gasoline prices at refining centers declined from the end of February until July. In August, prices rose in sympathy with crude prices, in spite of no improvement in the gasoline situation itself. This influence now seems to have spent itself, so that unless gasoline production is from now on subjected to more rigid control, price weakness must be expected in the future."

D. L. Clark Company Earning Dividend

According to D. L. Clark, president of the company bearing his name, the company earned its $1.25 per share dividend this year. Tonnage sales are from 20 to 25 per cent higher, but dollar sales are about 15 per cent less, he said. Mr. Clark says business is good with operations at about 80 per cent of capacity. This is a normal rate.

An additional $100,000 of the company's bonds have been purchased and will be retired shortly, Mr. Clark stated.

Notices 1-A

The members of Jefferson Lodge No. 280, F. & A. M., will assemble on Tuesday, December 15, 1931, at 8 o'clock p. m., for the purpose of attending the funeral of our late brother, Ludwig Kaufman.

By order of the W. M.
FREDERICK G. ALBRECHT, Secretary.
Masonic dress. Use of autos required.

In Memoriam 1-B

In loving memory of George Shriver, our beloved son and brother, who died one year ago today, December 14, 1930.

They that love beyond the world can not be separated by it.

Death can not kill what never dies. Nor can spoil what ne'er by dust hath been, For the conqueror worm is powerless, Before the soul and record of fair friendship.

Death is but crossing the world as friends do the seas; they live in one another still.

For the comfort of friends that though they may be said to die, their friendship and society are in the best sense ever present because immortal.

CHAPTER XXI.

The summer passed. The golden glory of the days gave place to autumn.

There were flecks of orange on the grey green of the willows down by the pool where Bruce and Laurel once had lingered. Little, narrow, tongue like leaves that—ere they dropped—reached final brightness.

Do what she would she couldn't get Bruce Harvey out of her mind . . . and their meetings were so infrequent.

His work was more to him than anything in the whole wide world, she told herself. No woman had a chance at him.

Not that they didn't try, by all accounts. Stories had reached her, via the country club and that arch-gossip Mrs. Delahunt, of idiotic females who took ill on purpose, so that could send for him, and go peer at him from their beds in daintiest, filmiest nightgowns . . . and et cetera.

But none of them made any headway with the young doctor.

He was "professional" with them . . . and often brusque if he thought they were faking.

Laurel felt lonely and distraite. It would have been a boon, she told herself, if she were poor, and had to work really hard for a living.

When one was the child of people as well-off as her own there was no incentive in working.

Besides, nobody was interested in her career or in what she was doing.

She excepted Imogen and Roger and Freddie, who were her friends or quasi-friends . . . only, so absorbed were they in themselves they didn't understand her moodiness.

DOCTOR AVOIDS HER

The burns garnered that memorable night of her exhibition dance with Diaz in the Country Club had healed.

Dr. Harvey had attended her a few times. Then, seeing she was quite well, apparently he had lost interest.

"He looks on me as a sort of cumberer of the earth!"

That was untrue. Bruce Harvey had found Laurel dangerously attractive, did she but know it.

So—by working increasingly hard—he sought to put the elf-like, alluring girl out of his mind.

Having had a belated lunch at the country club one day—(there was always the off-chance that she might see him there)—Laurel strolled over to the pool, wrapped in her own meditations.

They were not particularly happy ones.

The whoopie palled after a time . . . there was nothing new under the sun . . . and most of the gang were "wet smacks."

The little wood about the stream and pool was bright in its autumn foliage. A thrush twittered on a bough. There were robins and blackbirds, too, and finches.

Wonderful to be happy as they were! Wonderful to be here with—a lover!

A moorhen swam across the water. There was a trail of green weed on its surface. The bird skirted it cautiously.

So thought Laurel.

And what had she gained by all of it? A good time? Well . . . one wouldn't call it that. Excitement? Whoopie!

KEEPS SECRET

If Connie only knew! SHE knew! She'd seen Connie being kissed by Diaz that early morning.

But don't let one's mind dwell on it, or who knows, in a fit of rage, she'd blurt the whole thing out to Connie?

Diaz had told her of a queer old Spanish proverb. Something about the "ideal woman" having three things "short"—"her legs, her ears and her memory," had laughed Diaz.

"Why not add short sight as well, and turn the ideal female into the monkey who 'saw no evil, heard no evil and repeated no evil'?" had quizzed Laurel.

"Let's have a game of contract bridge," suggested Imogen.

Imogen was in form today. She was going up to town to-night and dine with Schumph, whom she referred to as her rich "Sugar." It seemed they had met a good many times since summer.

Timmy Tewson had warned Im that her new friend wasn't any "good" . . . but she had retorted that it was a case of the pot calling the kettle.

Think I'll "unloose" now," she declared after a couple of hours' play, when she had lost $30.

On the porch she ran into a married man she knew. He hailed her. "Come on down to the bar and have a cocktail, Laurel."

"I might as well do that as anything else," said Laurel listlessly.

"No. Only bored like hell. I just lost $30. Not that I care."

"To Imogen. Fairly."

"Yep . . . Im's a grand little bridge-player."

"So they say," returned the married man meaningly.

"No innuendo, please!"

"Don't say anything against my friend."

Genuine Scotch. "We'll make whoopie, Laurel!"

"Oh, that's all you lads can think of. You fancy you're hitting on all six cylinders, but you're only running out of idea fuel."

"What d'you mean by that?"

Laurel suggested that she had better drive the automobile back.

"That your 'think tank' is out of action. That you aren't original."

"Didn't he forget something? And . . . sh'h! . . . wasn't he, too, a married man?"

He poured her another. He told her he had a wonderful new car outside, which he must show her.

What did anybody care what she DID do? The drinks were potent. They gave her a certain boldness of spirit.

This seemed logical. All the more so when "Vulcan" informed her that his wife was in New York and wouldn't be back till 9:30.

"I'm to meet her with the car. Till then we can hit the merry-merry."

There was a wonderful new roadhouse that he knew of. They had Hawaiian singers there, and one could get drinks, too . . . it was worth thinking of.

"I'd better call up the house now, while I'm still sober," suggested Laurel, "and get the low-down on what's doing."

"Say that you're going out with Imogene!"

Stay! WAS he that?

Well, married or single, what did it matter?

She drained her glass, put on her coat and he carried the remainder of the bottle out to the machine.

The new roadhouse proved to be everything that "Vulcan" had claimed for it. The food was good, so was the music. And there were drinks in plenty to be had.

They danced, and ate, and drank, and then they sat at their table, crooning Hawaiian love songs. "Vulcan," greatly stimulated by the cocktails and the Scotch and other things he had partaken of, even asked Laurel to run away with him!

It was nearly 9 p. m. when they got up to go. It was quite a few miles to Laurel's home from here . . . and he was to meet his wife at the station at 9:30.

"Let me take the wheel. I drive like a streak," suggested the young lady.

"No, I'll make better time—" But he stuttered as he spoke. The keen, cold air had sent the drinks flying to his head, after the heat of the roadhouse.

"Whoops! My head's spinning round—"

"You get in here—" —she opened the door on the right hand side—"and let the air blow the colly-wobbles out of the old brain-pan!"

"Shut up, you old Vulcan!"

The drinks had made her confident, and she drove well. But in the moonlight, objects were uncertain.

"I'll take the wheel now," insisted Vulcan. She did not realize how tight he was, nor that he was also short-sighted.

A few miles further, rounding a corner, he mistook the white entrance of a carriage-drive for the main road. Crash went a gatepost! . . . the car bounded up the bank onto a private lawn and fairly leaped over the flower beds, carrying devastation in its path. Down went valuable rose-bushes and even a couple of small trees!

The owner of the property, furiously indignant, appeared. He loved his garden, but the last straw—when he flung open the door of the machine and bade the invaders to step out and do battle—was to discover on the floor, a—BOTTLE!

Without further parley, he telephoned for THE POLICE!

Synopsis

Laurel Oakes is invited by her friend Imogen Gay to attend a "wild party" held in an old deserted farm house. The party gets too "wild" for Laurel, and she escapes to her roadster. She finds the tires slashed. Running down the road she is picked up by Bruce Harvey, young physician, who takes her home. Later she goes with Imogen and Freddie DeFargo to Timmy Tewson's, a friend of Imogen's who is staging a party at his pent house. Here they meet Sam Schumph, with whom Imogen begins a flirtation. Laurel goes to the Country Club and does an exhibition tango with Diaz, a Spanish dancer, with whom Constance Oakes, Laurel's mother, is infatuated. Laurel's costume catches fire and Dr. Harvey saves her life. Laurel, recovering from her burns, overhears love passages between her mother and Diaz, standing under her window.

Now Go On

They Paid the Piper!

Merrily they were swept along, caught in the thrall of big city life—ignoring the realities, their debts, their future. When the day of reckoning came, Bill and Nevis found the piper demanded a large accounting.

Read how they solved their many problems—their love affairs among them—as told in "City Wed," a fascinating new serial about young married folk by Faith Baldwin, author of "The Office Wife" and "Make Believe."

Yesterday we learned something of how boys and girls enjoy Christmas in Poland. Today we will take a little peak at Christmas in Germany and Austria.

No home in Germany, from palace to hovel, is without its Christmas tree. The markets, all the squares and many of the streets are filled with evergreens weeks before the Christmas. The Germans make little cakes of various shapes to hang upon the tree. On Christmas Eve the children gather around it and sing carols, after which their father tells them the story of the Baby who was born so many years ago in Bethlehem, the Christ-child whose birthday we celebrate.

A beautiful German legend is told as follows: A little child lay dreaming. The Christ-child appeared to him first as a great hero. "I cannot be a hero," sadly said the child. "The Christ-child is not for me." Great warriors, rulers and statesmen were presented with similar effect. At last the Christ-child assumed the form of a gentle, loving, unselfish child. To this the dreamer eagerly responded, "I can be that. I must be that."

The Christmas festivities in Austria are much the same as those in Germany. The most prominent feature is the beautifully adorned and splendidly lighted tree. The poor people are always remembered for in addition to the Christmas tree that is set up in the palace for them, there are always trees in other parts of the city, loaded with presents for them.

In some parts of the country the people save the best honey and the finest fruits and vegetables for molds for the Christmas feast. Two great loaves are baked, representing the Old and the New Testaments.

Another custom in Austria is the placing of lighted candles in the windows of the houses, so that the Christ-child, in passing, will not stumble or fall.

One of the biggest treats of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club Christmas season, will be the free shows to be given at all the Warner neighborhood theaters, to which members of the club have been invited. The shows will begin promptly at 10 a. m. on Thursday morning, December 24, Christmas Eve.

Points of the President's Message

Number FOUR

"I recommend that immigration restriction now in force under administrative action be placed upon a more definite basis by law. The deportation law should be strengthened. Aliens lawfully in the country should be protected by the issuance of a certificate of residence."

Thanks to the energetic efforts of the Hoover administration, immigration has been cut to a minimum since the depression set in.

This was possible by administrative action because widespread unemployment here made it possible to exclude all aliens who might become public charges.

That is why Congress should adopt now a selective system of immigration within the quota limits already established by law.

Only under a selective system can we give preference to those aliens whose admission will not jeopardize the jobs of our own citizens.

Our immigration laws should not only exclude the unfit, but they should make it possible for the government to select from eligible applicants for admission those best qualified to find a place in our economic structure that is not now occupied by a citizen.

Although more than 18,000 undesirable aliens were deported last year, many times that number should have been deported and could have been deported, were our deportation laws as strong as they should be.

Instead of taxing our own people to pay for the imprisonment of criminal aliens until they have served their terms, it should be possible to deport immediately any alien convicted of any other than a capital crime.

It will not be possible to round up and rid this country of all criminals and other undesirable aliens until the government is given the power to register all aliens.

And until the government is given that power, it cannot protect desirable aliens lawfully in the country. Such aliens can only be protected by giving them a certificate of residence. They deserve that protection and Congress should grant it.

A selective system of immigration, stronger deportation laws and a registration law for all aliens are measures that have long been urged by the Hearst newspapers.

In urging these measures, the Hearst newspapers were voicing a public sentiment that will strongly support President Hoover's recommendation to the same effect.

Congress should enact this legislation at the present session. It should not wait until the return of prosperity subjects this country to a new flood of immigration that cannot be restricted and a new crop of criminal aliens that cannot be deported under existing laws.

A Better Plan

The so-called "Mayor's majority" in Council has rebelled against the dictatorship of Mayor Kline.

The Mayor has been told, according to a well authenticated report, that unless he co-operates wholeheartedly in an effort to reduce municipal expenses next year to a point which will permit a 3-mill cut in the tax levy his supporters in Council will cease to support him and will slash the budget without regard to what Kline thinks about it.

The immediate fruit of the ultimatum is that Mayor Kline and his department heads are reported to have assented to the abolition of non-essential jobs.

The elimination of sinecures, together with reductions in the higher salaries, will make it possible to avoid the general slash of 10 per cent that was proposed for the wages of all city employes.

"Auction Brides"

The Girls Offering Themselves in Marriage Provoke an Interesting Discussion.

The four girls in the Pittsburgh district who offered themselves in marriage last week to whoever would pay the price—ranging from $5,000 to $15,000—started an interesting discussion of a subject of which mankind never becomes weary.

Dr. Nathan Miller, of the Carnegie Institute of Technology, said the girls had done a normal, natural thing—"not much different from the debutante system, simply more honest."

One of the would-be brides reports she has received 365 proposals. She says she has also received letters from dozens of women who shun publicity, but would like to be married and who ask her to put them in communication with the suitors whom she rejects.

It is rather amusing—but it is rather pathetic, too.

A Church Merger

Three Presbyterian Congregations Set An Example Which It Might Be Profitable for Others to Follow

The movement for the consolidation of the Second Presbyterian Church, downtown, with the First and Central Presbyterian Churches of the North Side has been brought to a successful termination by official confirmation of the merger by Pittsburgh Presbytery.

It has been a wise move and will redound to the benefit of the three congregations, and of Pittsburgh, which is to get another architectural gem out of it in the form of a fine new church building.

It might be to the advantage of other congregations to follow the example set by these Presbyterian churches. Neighborhood churches still serve a useful purpose, to be sure. But shifts of population and changes in the character of the neighborhood have occurred in many sections, with the result that churches established years ago are now compelled to struggle on under difficulties that could be obviated by consolidation.

Street cars and automobiles have made it unnecessary to have a church within walking distance of one's home.

Peekaboo!

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Boo!

Boo! All platinum-blondes will soon be bald!

* * *

Bleaching the hair to silver-whiteness is an atrocity, which causes it to give up the struggle, and depart without warning. So declares a masculine prophet, sadly.

* * *

* * *

Remember when they terrorized us with the same awful prediction about the bob? Cutting the hair would soon end its life, and we girls should all be in the billiard-ball class with grandpa (Boo!)

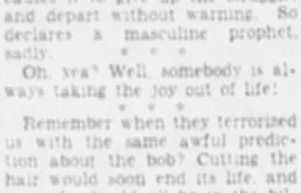
Yet, women went right on bobbing—and with every bob, the hair grew thicker and thicker, until it had to be "thinned out." That's just Nature's little way of balancing things.

* * *

The funniest admonition of them all was the frightful discovery, widely broadcast, that silk stockings would attract lightning. Recall that one? Silk stockings were then $4 a pair. And can't you picture poor, tired Dad reading THAT one aloud to Mother-and-the-girls?

* * *

But as yet, there have been no casualties from silk stockings—and the only lightning they ever attracted was the lightning of father's wrath.



The loudest "boo" of all, which rose to a roar of protest, was the "boo" against the votes for women. If women got the ballot they would become masculine—and UNATTRACTIVE! They would lose their lovely curves and grow mustaches and develop bass voices! Worst of all, with the coming of "equal rights" all masculine CHIVALRY would disappear!

* * *

And that time they guessed right! For, with the coming of feminism, masculine chivalry HAS disappeared. And we mourn its loss. But, perhaps, some of the younger set, who never knew its charms and thrills, would find it rather stuffy beside modern comaraderie. Just as those who have never tasted pre-war liquor might prefer the "kick" of bad gin to the mellow glow of old wine. Who knows?

* * *

No doubt, way back in the Garden of Eden, Adam said "Boo!" every time Eve tried a new fashion in fig-leaves or found a new use for cocoanut shells. But, somehow, the cry of "Boo!" doesn't make a woman jump, these days.

* * *

And ladies will continue to go platinum, just as long as men continue to fall for high-power blondes! BOO!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Came a highly readable autographed book by Bob Davis, called "Hither and Yon" and off to bid farewell to Billy De Beck and wife against journeying abroad and also saw Josephine Gwynne, Erskine's wife, a-visiting from Paris, as fair a lady as I know.

Then here and there about town, running into John Farrar and Clarence Buddington Kelland. Also Karl Hoblitzelle and his wife. Esther Walker, whose singing records were such a delight a few years back. So home and in great hunger somehow for tapioca pudding.

At nightfall to see a light comedy and sat across the aisle from Mayor Walker, more late than usual, and his frequent companion and diminutive, A. C. Blumenthal. Afterward driving Norma Terris and Dr. Wagner to the Ambassador. Early to bed.

One of the new additions to Tin Pan Alley is Father Connor, an assistant priest in a New Jersey parish. In leisure moments, Father Connor, under the pseudonym of Pierre Norman, has turned out some of the whistlingest tunes of the day along with a batch of theme songs for talkies. Best known are: "Moonlight Saving Time," "I Took My Sugar to Tea," "You Brought a New Kind of Love," and "I Got IT But It Doesn't Mean a Thing."

* * *

Speaking of talkies, few know that Windsor McKay, celebrated cartoonist, was first to introduce the animated cartoon. His efforts depicted a swollen and sullen dinosaur swallowing civilization. In formative days, animating the cartoon was a slow and tedious process in contrast to the high speed formula now in vogue. McKay is reputed to have sold rights to the idea for $500.

* * *

The mother of the enormously talented Helen Menken is deaf and mute. Many believe that the amazingly expressive hands of the actress were developed through years of talking with her mother, a constant companion, in sign language. Mrs. Menken is a frequent associate of the blind and deaf marvel, Helen Keller, and they often attend the theater together. Miss Keller, I am told, upon meeting a stranger, touches his shoulder. Years after she will know him by that touch.

* * *

They were discussing sarcastic letters from editors in the struggle for writing recognition. Charles Francis Coe declares that one of his first efforts was fired back with this blistering barrage: "I wouldn't print this on the inside lid of a coffin going down."

* * *

And Willard Mack avers the most stinging slap ever received for a play read: "Another one of those Mack things was offered last night at the Booth. And the audience went home in a taxi."

* * *

Sarcasm, however, is not confined to the arts. It often bludgeons in out-of-way places. Regina Wallace once stopped at a lunch wagon on the outskirts of New York when returning from a motor tour. She selected a dish of rice pudding for dessert. After a time, she remarked to the beetle - browed counterman: "There doesn't seem to be any raisins in this!" He flipped: "Don't give up, lady. Keep digging. You may snaffle an accordion."

From a newspaper magazine: "McIntyre has been writing about New York for 18 years. He has a desk completely of glass."

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Are wives abused?

Do they work far harder than a busy office girl?

Is the average mother, with one or two children, forced to labor beyond her strength?

Dozens, scores of complaining letters each week said she was. We wondered. We asked. And we're still as far from knowing as we were when we began.

For hundreds of ladies burst forth into big, wet tears of self pity. Were they overworked? They'd tell a Cro-o-oel Masculine World they were! No mother could accomplish even the lightest housekeeping without at least 12 hours of steady drudgery. And so on and so on—

But for each Sobbing Sister came a Snorting One!

Overworked? Piffle! Housewives were just lazy—that's what they were! Sorry because they had to work at all. But why shouldn't a wife work. And what was there so hard about housework, if a woman settled down to it systematically and made a business of it?

Here, for example, are Mesdames Meredith and Harpster. And what they have to say about whining wives is plenty!

My dear Miss Robinson:

This squawk about "overworked wives" makes me tired. It is really based on the fact that many women regard marriage as an ESCAPE FROM ALL WORK. They marry with the idea that they are going to sit around and be an inspiration to their husbands. Then, when they find that he expects them to do their share, they think they're martyrs.

When you come right down to it, what do the majority of working men get out of marriage? Nine times out of ten a nagging wife, a dirty house, a bunch of squalling babies, a mother-in-law who knows everybody's business but her own, continual demands for some new expenditures, and payments, payments, payments.

I am always hearing about these women whose "work is never done." Why not be honest, and admit that the real reason their work is never done is because they gossip too much, read too much, sleep too late, have a hundred other ways of wasting time?

If a wi would take her job as an office girl takes hers, there wouldn't be all these complaints. How do I know? Because I've worked in an office, and did my work well enough to have the assurance of a good job any time I want it. I've kept house and worked too. Now I'm married, keep an eight-room partly modern house, have two babies, do my own washing, canned 500 quarts of fruit and vegetables and have no inside help.

Who said "Marriage isn't a business?" It's the biggest business on earth. No wonder so many people find it necessary to be "Reno-vated," with all women expect of men and marriage. When the divorce comes, what do women want? Everything. The house, the car, the furniture, the money, the kids, and the man's salary for the rest of his life. And women say that marriage is a gamble!

RUTH HARPSTER,
Omaha, Neb.

"If they HAD to snap into it, the way office girls do, they'd be all right," says she. "But the lazy things know that they can stay in bed, let husband get his own breakfast and go to work. Then, when they finally do rise, they park themselves on the davenport, read the papers, or some love confession magazine—and wonder why their husband isn't like the hero!

"For the past three years I have kept house, immaculately too, doing every bit of work myself, except the wash. I have taken care of my boy, now five years old, have trained him properly, and shown him how to take care of himself; cooked meals, done up the dishes, straightened up the whole six rooms, and then off to work. I had a night job, and worked from nine till two and three in the mornings, and then went home only to be on my toes again early the next morning."

So there you have the other side of a very vexed question. What's the answer?

OR IS THERE PERHAPS A STIMULUS IN OFFICE WORK THAT HOUSEWORK LACKS?

What is YOUR answer?

Lady Bountiful In Run-Down Heels

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

The London News-Chronicle, commenting on the revelations on American conditions in the President's message, concludes that "the United States is a very sick country," and the London Morning Telegraph says:

"President Hoover unfolded a melancholy story, showing that the Federal Treasury is in a far worse position than the British Exchequer."

To Americans who have been fed by the administration on Pollyanna reassurances, this will be startling. We are constantly hearing from administration quarters that the United States is most fortunate in not being in such a bad condition as the countries of Europe. We have pointed out the insincerity of this statement many times. It is sheer nonsense; it is pure fabrication to imply that France is in as bad a condition as the United States. In comparison, France is rolling in prosperity, without our deficit, without our necessity enormously to increase taxes, and with but 300,000 jobless men to our 6,500,000.

In England, as the London paper says, the Exchequer is not confronted, even proportionately, with anything like the deficit that confronts us now; and proportionately she has no more unemployed than we have.

We are now forced to submit to a most drastic increase in taxation which is not likely to hasten the return of normal conditions.

Under these circumstances, what is to be said of a government that will agree to transfer the debts of England, France and the other debtor nations from the shoulders of their taxpayers to the backs of our own?

* * *

Unable to Make Both Ends Meet

The press comments in Berlin reveal the fact that Germany has had no idea of the seriousness of the crisis here. Germania finds evidence in the President's confession of "a worse depression in the United States than had been generally apparent." To the nations prone to look upon us as the world's Santa Claus it must be disturbing to learn that we ourselves are unable at present to make both ends meet.

It is going to take some time to balance our own budget; and it will be longer before we again smugly and sternly call on Europe to balance hers. Certainly we are in no condition to play the benefactor of mankind by taking over the debts of other nations and paying them out of the pockets of our own people.

There is not a scintilla of doubt that the administration, in its policies and through its conversations with the debtor nations, is moving toward further reductions or, what it amounts to in the end, the transfer of the debts of other nations to the taxpayers of this country. This plan, ready or in the making, is to be imposed upon us because our bankers have made extravagant private loans in Europe which cannot be readily liquidated if the people in the nations where the loans were placed are to be taxed to repay what they borrowed from the American Government. The "butcher, the baker, the candlestick maker" are to be taxed to pay the debts of foreign governments so that the private loans may be paid at good interest to the American banker.

And that justifies the demand of Senator Johnson.

"We want to know who floated these loans, under what authority, in what quantities and how much compensation was received. We want to ascertain why the American people should be compelled as a whole to stabilize securities held by private bankers and enable these banks to collect the full amount of interest upon these securities they hold, while the government collects nothing upon the securities it holds for all the people."

'Simply Stopped Paying Off the Debt'

The Mellon or administration tax plan will not be adopted in its entirety. It satisfies no one. It is impossible for any tax plan to satisfy everyone. The retroactive feature of the proposed plan, the lowering of the income tax exemptions to reach almost two million people of small incomes, are under attack.

The Democratic leaders in the House and Senate will formulate their substitute proposal only after a thorough study of the situation, and Congress and the people will have an opportunity to pass upon the two proposals. From Democratic sources we hear the same suggestion that comes from Dr. Seligman, the political economist, of Columbia, when he says:

"It is seriously open to question whether it is proper to continue the policy of retiring about $500,000,000 of bonds annually, as the United States is doing at present."

Under the sinking fund law this is required; but for a decade the administration has prided itself on paying off the debt faster than required by the law. And Dr. Seligman submits:

"Is it wise to observe the letter of the law at a time when such excessive burdens are to be imposed on the community?"

The nation was confronted by precisely the same problem at the time of the panic of 1873; and then, acting on the spirit rather than the letter of the law, the government "simply stopped paying off the debt" during the lean years. We shall hear something of this in Congress, we have no doubt.

* * *

To Get the Record Straight

The administration's plan of economy is worth careful study. We are, under this plan, to spend less on public works to furnish employment to the breadwinners out of work than at any time in three years. Evidently the administration, which never has manifested notable interest in the unemployment problem, is not going to try. Of course it is not planning to supplement the funds raised by private charity and the appropriations of other governmental units out of the federal treasury.

Now, no one is going to ask it unless it is necessary to prevent women and children from starving or dying because of exposure; and in that event the federal government is not going to wash its hands of human misery. The cry of "dole" is not going to act as a barricade between the starvation of Americans and governmental action.

In the debate on the message, when the Democrats attacked the record of the Hoover administration no attempt was made to answer. Instead, when one Democratic member commented on the fact that the humanities have no place in the President's program the administration forces joined in the jeering cry—"dole."

Now just to get the record straight we would like to know—Whether the President does not urge county, state and city governments to appropriate money raised by taxation to prevent starvation? Whether this money from county, city and state treasuries is a "dole."

And if it is not a dole, why a supplemental appropriation by the national government to make up the difference between what local communities can furnish and what is necessary to prevent starvation is a dole.

One thing we know, if money is necessary from the national treasury to meet the national problem of human misery under this administration it is going to be furnished; for any other course would make this country a disgrace to the family of nations.
